Housewife Tells of Killing Man Who Urged Her To Elope.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP)—A dark-haired housewife was near collapse today after re-enacting a woodland death scene in which she killed a middle-aged jeweler.

Her dress stained with blood, Mrs. Millie Prince, 31, stood in a Queens wood late yesterday and showed police how she stabbed Charles J. Wolfert, 55. She said Wolfert had threatened to kill her husband and 10-year-old son unless she eloped with him.

Standing on the death spot, she cried: "He spread his arms out wide and came up to me and said: 'Go on. You haven't got the nerve to kill me. But I deserve to be killed.'"

"All my friends have left me," she quoted him as saying. "You're all I've got. I'm going to have you if I have to get rid of your husband."

"Then she said: 'He punched me in the face. He caught me. I knew it was me or him. I stabbed him. I don't know how many times. I knew I had to finish it or he'd get me.'"

The stabbing was done, she said.

Pedigree Faking of Norman Lineage Scored by English Anthropologist

LEICESTER, Eng., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Casting a skeptical eye on the alleged Norman ancestry of certain English families, Lord Raglan, head of the anthropology section, told the British Association for the Advancement of Science today to be wary of "pedigree fakers."

Lord Raglan startled non-scientific members of his audience when he declared flatly that while there are many English families whose "traditions" are traced to the Norman conquest, "it can be said without fear of contradiction that not one of these is a genuine tradition."

All of them are the work of "pedigree fakers, who have flourished from early times and there is not a word of truth in them."

The Wake family, he continued, had no traceable connection with Hereford the Wake, famous for his resistance to William the Conqueror, or any other Saxon. He suggested Hereford himself might be a mythical hero and cast doubt on the existence of Robin Hood.

He mentioned ancient legends and many tales of folklore to support his contention that no traditional story can be taken seriously. Historians

Glass Eye "Explosion" Brings $10,000 Suit

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 7.—(UP)—O. G. Matthews, charging that the "explosion" of an artificial eye for which he paid $8 caused him great pain and inconvenience, today brought suit for $10,000 damages against Lynch Jewelry Co.

Matthews said the glass eye burst with an audible sound last June 9, a year and a half after he purchased it. The pain, he averred, was more excruciating than that which accompanied the loss of his eye by the explosion of an acetylene torch in 1922.

Eye specialists were at a loss to explain the "explosion" of the artificial optic.

and the ancient writers who created legends may have been seeking after truth, but to Lord Raglan their methods were totally unscientific.

He disclaimed the tradition, fostered by Shakespeare, that Henry V. spent his youth in London in drinking and debauchery and changed his character completely on accession to the throne. The facts were, he said, that at the age of 13 Henry became his father's representative in Wales, spent seven years in continuous warfare, was warden of the Cinque ports and Calais, became regent at the age of 22 and continued as such for the next three years.

3 ATLANTANS TELL OF TRYING TIME IN BAHAMAS STORM

Three Atlantans, whose names were not included among the survivors of a near-tragedy in the storm-battered Bahamas islands last week, arrived in Atlanta Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Minihennette, of 300 Pharr road, and Mrs. J. L. Bailey, of Dunwoody road, were members of a party which included five other Atlantans. All were guests of Dr. Boynton Wilbur, of Palm Beach, and were sailing on his yacht for Nassau when the tropical storm lashed their vessel and tossed it out of the water at the Port of West End. None was hurt severely, but virtually all members of the party suffered bruises.

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Guthrie, of 329 Brentwood drive, N. E.; Mrs. Ed Bond, of 800 Peachtree street, N. E.; and Mrs. Mattie Ellis Cooper, of 221 Fourteenth street, N. E., returned to Atlanta several days ago by train. A negro chauffeur of the Guthrie family also was in the party. In reporting their arrival in Atlanta, Mrs. Minihennette said all had gone through a trying experience. When the captain of the yacht gave up all life preservers we thought our time had come," she said. "We were buffeted about by the terrible storm and thrown from one side of the cabin to the other until all of us were bruised."

GRAPE RECIPES.
Grapes Provide a Note of Color on the Breakfast Table and a Temptation to the Flapping Appetite.
Do Not Scorn the Green or Partially Ripe Ones, They Make a Most Beautiful Bright Red Jelly.
A Plentiful Supply of Grape Juice Will Be Most Welcome During Winter Days to Come.

One of the most luscious and beautiful of fruits is the grape, regardless of kind or color. A very popular variety is the Concord or purple grape, from which is made grape juice de luxe.

Grapes may be served in clusters as they come from the vine, or the stems. They made be made into grape juice, grape butter, jam, catsup or jelly. The juice freshly extracted or canned may be utilized in the making of exceptionally good meat dishes or desserts.

If you have grapes growing in your garden, save and use them all. Even the green or partially ripe ones may be used for making the most beautiful of all jellies, the green-grape kind, which turns out to be a clear tomato color, quite tart and pungent. Grapes are especially useful in anemic diets, because of their blood building properties. Rich in minerals and vitamins, they are good stimulants and eliminators. Use them as often as possible. Keep a plentiful supply on the buffet or in the refrigerator.

Grape Sponge.
Two tablespoons gelatin, 1-4 cup cold water, 1-2 cup hot fresh grape juice, 3 egg whites, beaten fluffy, 2-3 cup sugar, juice 1-2 lemon, 1-2 cup cold grape juice, 10 marshmallows, 6 slices lemon.

Soak gelatin in cold water and cold grape juice. Then dissolve it in the hot grape juice to which the sugar and lemon juice have been added. Cool until the mixture begins to jelly, then slowly fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Beat until the spongy mixture holds its shape. Pour into a mold, previously rinsed with cold water, and let stand in refrigerator until firm. Unmold the dessert onto a serving plate, garnish with the marshmallows placed on the slices of lemon.

Serve with whipped cream.

Grape Turkish-Paste Candy.
Two tablespoons gelatin, 2 tablespoons cold water, 1-2 cup blanched almonds, 1-2 cup grape pulp, 1 cup grape juice, 1 cup sugar.

Soak the gelatin in the cold water. Cook the grape pulp, juice and sugar, stirring until thick. Cook until the mixture is like a sheet when dropping from edge of spoon. (Jelly test stage). Add the soaked gelatin, stir until dissolved, then add the chopped nuts and pour the mixture in a pan that has been greased with unsalted fat.

Line a pie pan with pastry dough. Fill with cooked grape mixture. Cover top with narrow strips of pastry arranged lattice-work fashion, or with an entire top crust, well cut and perforated. Bake in hot oven 425 degrees for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 375 degrees and continue baking till done, about 20-25 minutes.

Grape Meringue Pie.
One quart (4 cups) blue grapes, 2 egg yolks, 2 egg whites, 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, ground cloves.

If the grape juice is not sweet enough, add a little more sugar. Heat it. Dissolve in it the gelatin that has previously been soaked in small amount of water.

Hollywood Extra's Pay Averages $8.22 a Week

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Here is a note of interest to the movie-struck youth of the nation who hope to find fortune and fame in the film capital.

The average pay of the 1,400 active extras listed by the Central Casting Bureau, was only $8.22 a week from January 1 to July 1, 1933.

The bureau declared there now is an "over abundance of underpaid men and women" in the ranks of film extras.

amount cold water. Cool. Fold in the whipped cream, beating it until light. Pour mixture into mold, rinsed with cold water, cover tightly and freeze for two hours in three parts ice and one part salt mixture. Turn out and slice. Or freeze in tray of mechanical refrigerator.

Orange Loaf Cake.
One-half cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 2-3 cup orange juice, 1-7-8 cup cake flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt; grated rind 1 orange.

Cream butter, add sugar, creaming as you add it; add unbeaten eggs one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Then add the orange juice and grated rind, and the sifted dry ingredients. Bake in well-greased loaf pan, with piece of paper in bottom, in moderate 350-degree oven about 45 or 60 minutes. This may be served unfrosted, or frosted with an orange butter cream.

Canadian Orange Cake.
One and one-half cups brown sugar, 1-2 cup butter or margarine, 2 eggs, 3-4 cup sour milk, 1 cup seeded raisins, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2 cups bread flour, 1-2 teaspoon baking powder, 1 orange.

Squeeze juice from orange, and put the rind through the fine cutter on food chopper. Then run the raisins through a sieve to remove seeds. Combine sugar and fat, adding eggs and beating well; combining dry ingredients, and adding them alternately to the first mixture with the orange juice and chopped fruit.

Orange Cream Layer Cake.
Make an orange loaf cake batter. Bake in layers. It is a good idea, if crowded in layers, to double the recipe and make three thick layers, baking in 375-degree oven for 20 minutes. Put layers together with orange cream filling.

Orange Cream Filling.
One teaspoon cornstarch, 1 tablespoon butter, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 cup scalded milk, 3 eggs, juice and rind 1 orange.

Mix cornstarch and sugar, pour on gradually the hot milk, stirring constantly to prevent lumping. Beat egg yolks, add the hot mixture slowly, cook in double boiler 5 minutes, stirring well. Add the butter, orange and lemon juice, rind and stiffly beaten egg whites. Cool and spread between layers.

Frost the cake with white double boiler frosting, flavored with orange extract, and decorate the edge of the finished cake with slices of oranges in a circle, rounded side out. Cut the orange slices a little ahead of time and let the excess juice drain from them, so that it will not run onto the frosting.

Pineapple Meringue Cake.
One cup butter, 1-2 cup sugar, 4 egg yolks, 4 tablespoons milk, 1-2 cup pineapple, drained, 1-4 cup flour, sift in last 2 tablespoons cake flour with 1-4 teaspoon salt.

Mix as for cake, pour into 2 eight-inch layer pans and add meringue topping.

Meringue Topping.
Four egg whites, 3-4 cup sugar, 1-3 teaspoon vanilla, 3-4 cup chopped nut meats.

Beat egg whites to a froth, add sugar gradually, continuing beating until all sugar is added. Meringue should hold a point when beater is removed from it. Then add vanilla and spread the mixture on top of each of the unbaked layers. Sprinkle the chopped nuts on top of meringue. Bake the layers for about 20 or 25 minutes at 325 degrees to 350 degrees (moderate oven). Allow layers to cool, remove from pans and fill with pineapple filling.

Pineapple Filling.
One cup whipping cream, 1-2 tablespoon sugar, 1 cup crushed pineapple, drained, 1-4 teaspoon vanilla.

Whip cream, add other ingredients. Place one of the baked layers, meringue side down, on a cake plate. Spread with the whipped cream pineapple filling. Place the second layer on top, with meringue side up.

This cake is best if eaten the day it is made. At any rate, the whipped cream filling should not be added until shortly before serving.

Boston Cream Pie.
Bake two plain layers of cake. Put them together with a rich cream filling, and top the cake with powdered sugar. Washington cream pie is made the same way with chocolate filling.

English Cream Filling.
Scald 1 cup rich milk in double boiler. Combine 1-4 cup of flour with 1-3 cup cold milk to a paste and add to the hot milk, stirring constantly until thick. Cover and allow to cook 15 minutes.

Beat 1 egg, add 1-2 cup sugar and beat again. Then add 1-4 teaspoon salt and stir into the hot mixture. Continue stirring and cooking for about a minute, till egg is set. Cool, flavor with vanilla.

BYRD WOULD FLY 'BEYOND THE POLE'

Admiral Will Sail September 25 for Two-Year Trip Into Antarctic.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd announced plans today for a two-year antarctic exploration trip in which he plans to fly "beyond the pole" and explore an area as large as the United States and Mexico combined.

Byrd, who called at the White House to bid President Roosevelt goodbye, said he would sail from Boston September 25 for Little America, the base he established on his last antarctic expedition. The climax of that trip was a flight to the south pole and back.

"I am going to attempt to fly beyond the pole this time," Byrd said. "That is where the great uncharted area lies. As long as there is such a vast territory unknown by man existing on the face of the globe, I believe it necessary to investigate."

Seventy Men.
Byrd will have in his party 70 men and 150 sled dogs. Two ships, the old revenue cutter Bear and the supply ship Pacific Fir, will carry 14,000 separate items of food to support the party during its two-year sojourn.

"We will live in an ice age, look for a new continent and serve 10 or 12 hours a day of hard work," Byrd said. "Mr. Roosevelt made public the following letter of farewell to his caller: 'My Dear Dick: 'I am delighted that you have had the faith to go ahead with this scientific expedition to the antarctic continent and that you have definitely set the date of departure for September 25.'"

"It is because you and I are such old friends, and because I have followed so closely your three previous expeditions, that I expect to keep in close touch with your new expedition."

New Continent.
"I realize the importance of your excellent preparations for scientific discovery, and the fact that you will make a detailed survey of a large area of a new continent previously unexplored. It is worth while to serve 12 branches of science."

"I am especially interested in the exhaustive study of weather on the antarctic continent—a territory in the clutches of the ice age, and a weather maker for the greater part of the South American continent. Your weather observations will undoubtedly be of great importance to South America, and the greater part of the world of world weather conditions."

"From a sentimental point of view, I am delighted that you are using the old cutter Bear, and I wish much that I could see you and the expedition off when you sail."

"I want you to feel that on your expedition you have the full support of the United States government and that you can call on the government in case of need or emergency."

"When you re-establish the post-office at Little America be sure to send me a letter for my stamp collection."

"Good luck to you and all of your associates and crews."

"Always sincerely yours, 'FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.'"

Jewish Conference Bans German Goods
GENEVA, Sept. 7.—(UP)—An official boycott on German goods was declared today by the executive committee of the Jewish conference here.

The action came during a heated session in which the meeting was in danger of breaking up following an attack on the Zionist agreement with the German government. Various delegates denounced the Zionists for dealing with Germany amid Zionist delegates' shrieks of abuse and interruptions.

Nahum Goldman, a German-Jew, detected the meeting was in danger of breaking up following an attack on the Zionist agreement with the German government. Various delegates denounced the Zionists for dealing with Germany amid Zionist delegates' shrieks of abuse and interruptions.

The boycott on German goods will be submitted to the full Jewish conference tomorrow. Its passage was believed assured.

JUDGE WITH WHOM HE ONCE GOLFED SENTENCES M'GURN
CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Before a judge with whom he once played golf, "Machine Gun Jack" McGurn was convicted of being a vagrant and sentenced to six months in the workhouse. His real name is Vincent Gebardi.

The conviction of the man who is alleged to have been a member of the gang Al Capone came in 19 minutes after his case reached the jury in Judge Thomas A. Green's court last night. He was about to be led away to jail when a bondsman appeared and posted a cash appeal bond of $10,000.

During the testimony Attorney Benjamin Feldman attempted to get the defendant to tell of having once played golf with the presiding jurist and the judge said:

"I know what you are driving at. It is true that I once played with McGurn at the Evergreen public golf course. I was with two men I knew and McGurn joined us to make a foursome. I didn't know who he was. That might happen to anybody."

POSTAL ECONOMIES

PLEDGED BY FARLEY

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 7.—(P)—Postmaster-General James A. Farley said here today it is his intention to effect a saving in expenditures of the postoffice department for the current fiscal year of approximately $75,000,000 in comparison with the fiscal year 1933.

This savings, he said, combined with the anticipated increase in revenue, will permit the department substantially to balance its budget without calling upon the treasury and the taxpayers for aid.

Husky Top Sergeant in Limelight In Cuba's Swift Change of Rulers

By MELVIN E. COLEMAN.
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Almost overnight Fulgencio Batista has become a center of activity in the latest difficulties in Cuba.

A few days ago he was a top sergeant in the Cuban army. In the new revolution he took charge of the military under the title of "revolutionary chief of the armed forces of the republic."

Of a polite nature, his experience as court stenographer for nearly every military trial held in Cuba dates back about eight years. In that time he became acquainted with students and oppositionists tried for activity against former President Machado.

This leader of the army in the bloodless overthrow of President De Cespedes and his cabinet, in office a bare 22 days after the hastened departure of Machado, explained the movement as "the result of plans of civilian leaders."

There's a beauty-parlor in your kitchen

POWDERS and creams are delightful aids to beauty. They will do wonders—if you start with a healthy body. For health, itself, is the source of sparkling eyes and an engaging personality.

Too often, women permit common constipation to undermine their health and charm. This condition may cause skins to turn sallow, eyes to become dull, wrinkles and pimples to appear.

Your kitchen provides a safe product to overcome common constipation. All you need to do is eat a delicious cereal.

Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN furnishes "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Two tablespoonfuls daily will prevent and relieve most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, consult your doctor. How much nicer it is to eat a food in place of taking patent medicines.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

'Fire Prevention Week' Program Planned by Department Here

Coincident with President Roosevelt's proclamation setting the week of October 8 for observance of "Fire Prevention Week" Harry Phillips, Atlanta fire inspector, Thursday made public plans for the department's program here.

The president said the observance of the week has become a custom in America "to prevent avoidable waste of lives and property."

The Atlanta program calls for several weeks of fire prevention, radio talks and the display of signs and window cards in all sections of the city. Later Governor Talmadge and Mayor Key will be asked to issue proclamations for the state and city. During the week of observance, civic clubs will be asked to arrange for speeches along the line of observance.

Handled this year by the American Legion, Post No. 1, promotion of the week will follow several years' custom. Medals will be offered boys and girls in high schools for best essays on the subject of fire prevention, a prize going to one boy and one girl.

Mr. Phillips, who is directing the observance for the fire department, said that "while every week in the year is prevention week for this department, we are glad to once more join in the general observance in order that people may be urged to take precautions against fire."

During the week residents will be urged to clean up fire hazards from attic to basement and in yards. Firemen will be assigned to inspection work and a general cleaning will be in order.

HOWELL COBB PASSES AT HOME IN EL PASO

Former Athens Man Buried in Texas City; Was Spanish War Veteran.

Howell Cobb, of El Paso, Texas, formerly of Athens, Ga., died in El Paso Friday, September 1, and was buried there Saturday afternoon. He was the son of the late Judge Howell Cobb and the late Mary McKinley Cobb, and was born in Athens November 2, 1870.

Mr. Cobb is one of four in a direct line of four generations in his family bearing the name of Howell Cobb who have served in great wars of the nation. His grandfather was General Howell Cobb of Confederate fame, and his father, Judge Howell Cobb, served on General Cobb's staff as captain in the War Between the States. Mr. Cobb was himself a Spanish War veteran while his son, the late Howell Burnett Cobb, of Athens, was the first Clarke county boy to give his life in the World War.

Mr. Cobb was twice married, his first marriage being to Miss May Burnett, of Athens. Their two sons were Wiley Burnett Cobb, who died in infancy, and the late Howell Burnett Cobb. Mr. Cobb later married Mrs. Ida Julia Cooper, of El Paso, Texas, formerly Miss Judia.

After his services in the Spanish-American War Mr. Cobb settled in El Paso, where for about 30 years he was prominent in the civic life of the community with a host of friends. He is survived by his wife, two adopted children, Hugh Cooper Cobb, and Vera Cooper Cobb Holmes, and two adopted grandchildren, Holly and Mary; his sisters and brothers, Mrs. Sara Cobb Baxter, of Athens; Miss Carolyn Cobb, of Atlanta; Carlisle Cobb, of Athens; William McKinley Cobb, of Washington, D. C., and Zach Lamar Cobb, of Los Angeles, Cal.

False Teeth Are Held For Back Board Bill

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(P)—Mrs. Paula Vance, 35, was arraigned in Coney Island magistrate's court today on a charge of withholding a set of false teeth and a pair of spectacles from Mrs. Anna Cohen, formerly a boarder in the Vance household.

"Yes," said Mrs. Vance, "I'm holding them—as a lien. Mrs. Cohen owes me a board bill of $12.50."

"But Mrs. Vance, you can't hold such things as a lien," said the court.

"Oh, very well," said Mrs. Vance, producing a tin box. "Ask Mrs. Cohen to pick hers out." In the box were half a dozen pairs of spectacles and several sets of false teeth.

Key Signs Suspension, Power Survey Bills

Mayor James L. Key Thursday gave his approval to an ordinance, adopted Tuesday by council, authorizing council to suspend any indicted city official or employee on a two-thirds vote following the filing of a written motion by any member of council. Although enactment of the ordinance is considered as having significance in connection with the indictment of Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant, on misdemeanor charges growing out of the police courtesy card investigation, Sturdivant's trial probably will be held before any action could be taken by council, it was said.

The ordinance was introduced three years ago and laid on the table until Tuesday, when it was called up by Alderman G. E. Millican and passed, 33 to 3, after a hot debate.

Mayor Key also gave his approval to a resolution calling for appointment of three members of council and two citizens as a committee to investigate the question of private and public ownership of electric power utilities, in connection with the Tennessee Valley development with an eye on possible cheaper rates for the city.

NRA VIOLATION IS LAID TO GEN. JOHNSON'S MILL

Union Officials Claims New-ark Factory Evading Spirit and Letter of Code.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 7.—Eric Ross, labor union official, charges violations of the NRA at the Lea Fabrics, Inc., factory, of which General Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, is president, in telegrams sent today to President Roosevelt, General Johnson, Secretary of Labor Perkins and the labor board of the NRA.

Ross, who is secretary and treasurer of the International Carpet Workers' Union, said the Lea firm has cut the working week of its employees from 48 to 40 hours without increasing their hourly wage, which is 40 cents. This, he said, reduces weekly wages from $19.20 to $16.00.

He also charges that Herbert Smalley, an employee, was discharged from the Lea factory for attempting to organize a union. Ross said that Smalley had been with the firm four years and that no satisfactory reason for his discharge had been given.

While the Lea firm has added additional employees, Ross said, it is now operating on a 20-hour schedule, seven days a week. In a statement yesterday Ross declared he felt that the Lea firm has failed to live up to the spirit and the letter of the NRA.

Lea Fabrics, Inc., is a subsidiary to the national woolen and worsted carpets code which was filed yesterday. Elbert K. Files, vice president and general manager of Lea Fabrics, Inc., finds no basis for the charges made by Ross, he said.

The normal working week at the Lea plant, he said, is 40 hours, while last week it was only 30 hours a week. Smalley, he declared, had been discharged for incompetence.

Mr. Files said Ross is affiliated with the Associated Industrial Workers of America in Camden, which the plant official described as "a radical organization."

City, County Schools To Be Reopened Today

More than 90,000 elementary and high school students of Atlanta and Fulton county Thursday bid farewell to playgrounds and other vacationing places and prepared for the reopening of school today.

Registrations are to begin in the city and county schools at 8:30 o'clock this morning. The Friday registration was ordered this year in order that no time may be lost when classes are resumed Monday morning.

It was estimated Thursday that 60,000 pupils would register in the city schools and about 25,000 in the county schools.

Peggy French Freed On Talmadge Parole

Peggy French, convicted of manslaughter in 1930 and sentenced to serve from eight to ten years in connection with the slaying of John S. Garmon, railroad dispatcher, has been freed on parole, it was learned Thursday.

Governor Eugene Talmadge approved the parole September 1, on recommendation of the prison commission. Mrs. French, who had served slightly more than three years, was paroled in custody of her husband, Harley L. French, a traveling salesman.

Garmon was shot and killed in the French home on east Eighth street. Mrs. French contended that she shot him because he intruded in her home, but the state charged that the slaying was caused by Garmon's attempt to seduce a lover after which Mrs. French admitted she had carried on with Garmon for several years.

Court Approves Sales Of Missouri State Life

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 7.—(P)—Circuit Judge H. A. Hamilton late today approved the sale of the Missouri State Life Insurance Company to a group of New York financiers headed by David Milton, son-in-law of John D. Rockefeller Jr., and Walter W. Head, former president of the American Bankers' Association.

The sale price under the plan submitted by the New York group is $2,000,000. The corporation formed by the group to purchase and operate the Missouri State, which has nearly $1,000,000,000 of insurance in force, is the General American Life Insurance Company. Head will be its president.

In approving the sale plan, Judge Hamilton said he felt the action was in the interest of all creditors and policyholders and a delay in settling the fate of the company might result in heavy losses to policyholders.

"FINE" MOSQUITOES ARE USED BY U. S. ON SLEEP MALADY

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 7.—(P)—"Pitch-in camp" in a battered hospital building of World War days, army medical experts today unpacked "pure-bred" mosquitoes, monkeys and assorted rabbits and joined science's efforts to solve the mystery of deadly "sleeping sickness."

Major James A. Simmons, explaining the army's work, said he was taking "a long shot" in an effort to hook up a study of encephalitis with other army investigations of equine encephalomyelitis and herpetic encephalitis.

While the monkeys dazed preparatory to approaching martyrdom, and the mosquitoes buzzed menacingly, four additional experts of the United States public health service also arrived in St. Louis to reinforce their fellows.

Five more deaths from encephalitis occurred as the new experts joined a far-flung laboratory chain spreading throughout the Greater St. Louis area. This brought the death toll here to 86.

Far from the noise and bustle of the city the army experts, led by Major Simmons, director of laboratories of the army medical school in Washington, and Major V. H. Cornell, curator of the Army Medical Museum, began their studies.

GRAY HAIR 'SMART' FOR MODERN WOMAN STYLISTS REPORT

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—(P)—Gray hair dreads feminine bugaboo—is becoming the smart thing, plantinum blondes and henna heads notwithstanding.

That's straight from the officials of the Chicago and Illinois Hairdressers' Association, which today sponsored a style show illustrating fashionable ways to dress white, gray or graying hair—and a number of the models are young women, prematurely gray.

"Yes," said Max Hofer, president of the association, "women are realizing the beauty of gray hair—something hairdressers have always known."

In increasing number women who formerly dyed their locks are letting them turn gray, said Hofer.

He related that it has been his experience recently that women, instead of developing inferiority complexes and thinking in terms of tombstones when the silver threads begin to appear, are devoting attention to enhancing the real beauty of gray hair by properly caring for it.

Next year's convention will be held in Atlanta, Ga., during November.

ROBERT MALEY'S BODY IS FOUND IN LAKE

Third Victim of Motorboat Tragedy Taken From Waters Near Clayton.

Search for the bodies of three men who were drowned in Lake Burton last Sunday when their motorboat overturned was concluded Thursday with the recovery of the body of Robert R. Maley, of Decatur. The body of his brother, Raymond, was recovered from the water Wednesday at about the time funeral services were being held in Decatur for J. Wilson Bell, the other man who was drowned.

The tragedy occurred when the motorboat, in which the three and Samuel H. Benedict were piloting in circles, suddenly overturned in the deepest part of the lake. Benedict swam to shore but his companions were not able to save themselves.

The bodies of Bell and Raymond Maley were found at about the place where the accident occurred. The body of Robert Maley was taken from the water Thursday at about 2:30 o'clock by John LaPrade, who found it near his fishing camp 100 yards farther from the dam than where the boat overturned.

The bodies of the two Maley brothers were removed to an undertaking establishment at Clayton and late in the day were taken to the offices of A. S. Turner, funeral director, in Decatur.

Funeral services for the brothers will be held at 10 o'clock this morning at the Sacred Heart church. Interment will be in the Decatur cemetery.

Raymond C. Maley was a resident of Birmingham. Robert R. Maley lived on King's Highway in Decatur. He is survived by his wife. The father, John R. Maley, of Carthage, N. Y.; three other brothers and a sister also survive.

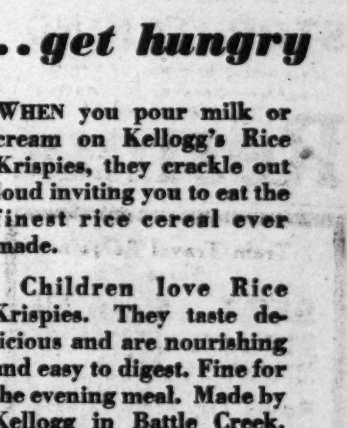

Funeral services for Mr. Bell were held in the First Baptist church, of Decatur, with the Rev. A. J. Moncrief, the pastor, officiating. Interment will be in the Decatur cemetery. Mr. Bell is survived by his wife and two children.

RAINS CAUSE LOSS TO GEORGIA CROPS

Cotton, Pecan and Truck Products Damaged, Commissioner Adams Says.

Damage to south Georgia's cotton crop by heavy rains during the past few days was reported Thursday by U. C. Adams, commissioner of agriculture, who said he was advised that the downpour was the heaviest in years.

"Heaviest rains in years practically all through south Georgia have been reported during the past few days, and the rains have whipped the cotton out of the bolls," Mr. Adams said.

"In many sections, cotton fields had not received as much attention as ordinarily because of the business of farmers of getting the tobacco crop to the market."

"Excessive rains can seriously damage cotton, both as to quantity and quality and if the rains keep up, it is likely to cause even greater harm from sprouting of the seeds."

"From the Albany district, I received a report that the pecan industry suffered from the heavy rains and accompanying winds."

"Heavy rains damage truck crops more or less and in the Savannah area, where the downpour appears to have been the heaviest, doubtless will cause considerable damage to truck crops as heavy as they had in that section—reported at nearly seven inches—will wash crops away."

At the state bureau of markets, J. F. Greer, director, said he also had received some reports of damage to cotton, "much of which is still in the fields."

"Where the rains were not excessive, they will benefit growing fall and winter truck crops. Rain will not hurt the north Georgia cabbage crop seriously unless it continues over a long period. But the rains do slow down the sales of produce, especially on the open markets, such as Atlanta."

VETERANS CLOSE ANNUAL MEETING; REUNION PLANNED

Major James L. Key, in a welcoming address to the United Veterans of the Confederacy, asserted Thursday that at the proper time he would confront the people of Atlanta with the problems of completing the Stone mountain memorial, a federal memorial on Kennesaw mountain and a memorial highway through Atlanta connecting the two.

At the business session of the U. C. V., a resolution was adopted to send President Roosevelt a pledge of loyalty. It was also resolved to ask Miami to allow them to hold a reunion there in 1934. Although a reunion was not held this year due to economic conditions, it was decided to hold one next year, even if the veterans themselves must raise the funds. Officers for the ensuing year will remain the same.

General Homer T. Atkinson, of Petersburg, Va., commander-in-chief, gave the invocation. A resolution calling on the United States government to pay Confederate pensions was read.

The Confederate Southern Memorial Association held its closing business session Thursday morning. Memorial services were held at St. Mark church at 1 o'clock.

The veterans and the memorial association attended a luncheon at the Wren's Nest, sponsored by the Uncle Remus Association, Thursday. Mrs. A. McD. Wilson is president-general of the Confederate Southern Memorial Association and life president of the Uncle Remus Association.

The Margaret A. Wilson chapter, Children of the Confederacy, gave a program at the luncheon and Mrs. Charles Warner sang southern songs. She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. J. F. Ledick.

ALLEGED COMMUNISTS HUNTED BY OFFICERS

Arrested in Raid Here, Two Fail To Appear To Make Bonds.

County and city officers Thursday were searching for Miss Ruth Mulkey, of 321 Crumley street, secretary of the Atlanta branch of the International Labor Defense, and Martin Walker, alias Walker Martin, of Alabama, for whom warrants charging distribution of seditious literature were issued Thursday.

Miss Mulkey and Walker, who refused to give a local address, were arrested Wednesday night in a raid led by Assistant Solicitor John Hudson at 141 1/2 Auburn avenue, where officers said they found a quantity of "communist" literature.

The man and woman were placed under technical arrest and were to make $2,000 bonds each Thursday morning but did not appear. Ben Davis, Atlanta negro lawyer, vouched for their appearance to Hudson.

Records and reports and literature pertaining to the Scottsboro case and to the Angelo Herndon case, were found at the Auburn avenue address, which officers said was "communist" headquarters in Atlanta. Herndon, a negro organizer, was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment for distributing seditious literature, which, in Georgia, is a capital offense.

Hudson said he did not send Miss Mulkey and Walker to jail Wednesday night because of "the lateness of the hour." Another man was in the building at the time of the raid but was not arrested when he told the officers he was just a visitor. Walker said his home was at Lenn, Ala., but the postal guide does not list the town.

Ad-Contestants Ask Questions And Are Answered by Ad Editor

By JAY ORR JR.
You can't tell a book from its cover, neither can you tell a good advertisement unless you read it. Before it can be read it must be written. If you win one of the prizes in the $1,300 cash-prize-ad-writing contest, you must write an advertisement.

In three weeks' time, more than 1,500 Atlantans have taken up this interesting and profitable pastime. They are going to the 27 firms co-operating in the contest and getting some advertising paper absolutely free.

The answers this week were splendid and the judges are now making their choices.

And now to answer a few questions. J. H. of Marietta, wants to know if it is best to use a pen or a pencil. The answer is pencil. C. J. B. of Atlanta, asks "Should there be more than one illustration in each ad?" The answer is, "It depends on what you are writing about. Shoes, yes. Hardware, yes. Groceries, no. Rugs, no. Jewelry, yes. Men's wear, either one or more. Women's wear, either one or more. Drugs, yes."

Still another contestant writes, "May I write an ad for 10 or 12 different firms?" The answer is, yes; the more ads you write the better chance you have, and then, too, your ideas may be better for jewelry than they are for coats or hats.

You will not find it any trouble to write an ad. Anyone can write one. I'll wager that the winners for this week did not think they were writing prize-winners, but they were.

You will never know whether or not you can write an ad, or win a prize, unless you try. This contest is for amateurs only. Get some ad-writing paper today, and enter your ad next Wednesday at 137 Peachtree Avenue.

ATLANTA, GA., SEPT. 8, 1933.

GEORGIA GETS HER MONEY.

Through the vicissitudes of trials in the United States court, the state court, and with final action by President Roosevelt, Georgia will, without further delay, receive the state's $10,000,000 share of the $400,000,000 set aside for highway construction in the federal public works fund, Governor Talmadge's contention having been sustained at every turn.

The action of the president is a distinct victory for the governor, from the beginning has stood flatfooted on the proposition that the state was entitled to its allotment from this fund, but that it would not be accepted if accompanied by conditions which reflected upon his administration, or upon the sovereign right of the state to administer its part of this fund without direction, other than by inspection, from the federal highway board.

The Constitution earnestly supported Governor Talmadge in this contention.

The effort to divert the government's checks so that they would not pass through the hands of the governor was very properly resented, for it reflected not only upon his administration but it was a direct affront to the authority of the state to deal with its own problems.

Georgia's part of this fund will now be received without any other string tied to it than that the federal highway bureau will have the right to inspect the work, and to see to it that it is executed according to specifications—nothing more nor less than the government does in every piece of highway work done with federal appropriation.

The Constitution felt confident that as soon as President Roosevelt understood the situation he would see to it that the state would not be done the injustice of further withholding an appropriation to which it was undoubtedly entitled. This fund will be administered by the state highway board, which is composed of men of as fine character as live in the state. That every dollar of the fund will be wisely expended under their direction there can be no doubt.

It is gratifying to know that primary consideration will be given to connecting the unpaired links of the arterial highways of the state. This has been too long delayed, and not only have the counties along these main highways suffered from this delay, but contiguous counties have been seriously affected. From this neglect practically the whole state has suffered.

Not only are the main avenues of traffic to be completed, but counties not on them will be connected with lateral feeders. Thus a solution has been reached of a problem which has agitated the state for several months, and for the very satisfactory outcome both President Roosevelt and Governor Talmadge are to be congratulated.

"JUST ANOTHER JOB."

The laconic statement of Brigadier General Harry Lee, described in news dispatches as "a short, solid individual," that there is no undue excitement among the marines being concentrated at Quantico barracks, because if they were sent to Cuba it would be "just another job," is typical of the mental attitude of this branch of the armed forces of the nation.

Whether it is a job of policing to be done in Nicaragua or Haiti, of peace-making in China or the carrying of the first brick of a major conflict, as they did at Belleau Woods, it's all in the day's work for the marines.

Their psychology, more than a little hard-boiled, is that there is no reason for excitement in performing what they contracted to do when they enlisted. No wonder that with such a mental attitude, backed up by physical fitness, the last word in equipment and under the direction of highly trained officers, their record as a unit of the armed forces of the United States is one of duty well done, whatever its nature and wherever performed.

The demoralization of the marines which would have resulted from the drastic cuts in the appropriations for their upkeep, proposed last year, brought nationwide protests, when it was shown that under these reductions the training barracks of the marines would have to be largely abandoned.

The marine corps dates back to the early days of the Revolutionary period, and since that time they have always been the first to carry the flag in a national emergency.

Their greatest value lies in the fact that they must always be ready to snap into action at a moment's notice, and the present situation with regard to Cuba emphasizes the necessity of keeping them, as they have always been, a defense body, either for the nation itself or for the lives and property of its citizens, to which any assignment will be "just another job" to be well and efficiently done.

DEWART DID IT!

The celebration by the New York Sun of the 100th anniversary of its founding in 1833 is of interest and significance not only in the newspaper world, but to the whole country, because of the degree to which this great newspaper has reflected in its growth the development of the nation.

When the Sun was founded on September 3, 1833, by young Benjamin H. Dewart, the first step was taken to revolutionize newspaper standards which had existed to that time. Primarily the newspaper of that day was for the dissemination of the policies and opinions of its editors and for political propaganda.

Day's idea was that a newspaper should live up to its name, and the Sun was dedicated to the publication of the news of the day, as its primary function, an idea which proved immediately popular and which has been zealously followed by the Sun in its century of honorable existence.

Despite the fact that the Sun in its long career has undergone frequent changes of ownership and editors, its standard of service has never lessened. Reaching its zenith under the genius of Charles A. Dana in the period following the War Between the States, it subsequently passed into the hands of Frank A. Munsey and thence, a few years ago, into the possession of its present owner, William T. Dewart. Under his able direction it has reached the top rank of American newspapers, and is today a bigger, better, more prosperous and more powerful newspaper than ever in its eventful career.

Dewart did it!

There are more people injured today in their homes than on the highway—News item. Naturally, as there are no rugs for one to slip and fall on a highway.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

First Step To Socialism.

The collectivization of agriculture is said to be the first step on the road to peasant participation in the classless society of the future. At the close of the second five-year plan, now in operation, the classless society will have been born, it is said. It means that there will no longer be any distinctions between peasants and industrial workers and the intelligentsia, but that there will be, in Stalin's own words, "a classless society of toilers." The nobles and the middle classes have been completely eliminated long ago.

To this end, the comforts of modern life are to be brought to the rural regions, not merely the little amenities such as radio, telephone and newspaper, but all institutions of culture and art and learning which the Russian cities already possess in so abundant a measure and which they are constantly widening and enlarging. On the whole the peasant masses have seen the point of collectivization, as is shown by the fact that 70 per cent of the total agricultural domain in the soviet union is operating under the new system. "It is one of the greatest things accomplished in this century," an English agricultural expert told me upon his return to Moscow from a two months' study of the collective farms.

The Golden Krim.

By way of contrast with the Ukraine, where conditions were bad last winter, stands the Crimean peninsula with its marvelous Riviera-like climate and rich soil. In that part of the union there is actually cause to speak of prosperity and well-being. The Jewish colonies there are said to be doing exceptionally well. I hope to go down there in the near future. It will be a delight to see Jews who are not hard pressed either by economic circumstances or by political mistreatment.

The contrast with Germany and certain other countries will be startling. Who would ever have thought that a comparison could have been made between Germany and Russia in so far as their respective treatment of Jews is concerned, and that Russia would come out on top. It was once the worst pogrom-land in the universe. Fortunately, that aspect of Russian life is past and gone. Anti-Semitism seems to have toppled over into the abyss of history along with the crown and scepter of the Romanoffs.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

ASCARIS LUMBRICOIDES HAS A BAD NAME BUT A GOOD RECORD.

This is the common round worm, the most frequent and perhaps the most harmless intestinal parasite of man, in this country. It is a nematode resembling the ordinary earthworm, but the lumbricoid is paler. It varies from a few inches to 1.2 feet in length and from the thickness of a hair to that of a lead pencil.

Most children harbor lumbricoid worms at one time or another and only rarely do the parasites cause any appreciable disturbance of the host's health. With worms of this size the symptoms are seldom those which old folks so confidently ascribe to worms. A careful observation of a large number of children who were known to have worms, and of an equal number who were free from worms, showed that just as many without worms gritted their teeth in sleep as did children who had worms. This does not mean that a child who grinds his teeth in sleep has no worms; on the other hand—well, it should convince a reasonable person that the gritting of the teeth is not a "symptom" of worms. Likewise, the symptoms which occur in various slight disturbances of health, especially in children, and which the grannies delight to ascribe to worms, are not in the least indicative of their presence. In fact, the only way to be certain a child has worms, and, in my opinion, the only justification for giving the child any kind of treatment for worms, is the finding of the worms, or the microscopic demonstration of their eggs.

It was formerly a bit of quack humbug to assure ignorant mothers that the worms are partly dissolved or broken up by the fake medicine and therefore you can't recognize them when they are passed. That's a typical case of hokum.

There can be no uncertainty about a lumbricoid worm or a number of them in any case. We need not discuss the remedies or method of treatment for round worm infestation. That is strictly a problem for the physician in attendance. Our province is rather to teach people how to avoid such infestation, and to avoid the certain dangers from ill advised self-treatment or quack remedies.

The worm eggs, microscopic in size, leave the human host in the intestinal discharges. In a sewer, perhaps, the worms are swallowed by mice or rats. The eggs hatch in the rodent's stomach, and the young larvae penetrate the stomach wall, get into the veins and are carried to the lungs by the blood. Thence into the bronchial tubes, and eventually reach the saliva some eight days after the eggs were laid. The rat or mouse gets into the food, infecting it, and the food is later eaten by the child. Mice and rats are probably the general agents in the distribution of ascaris lumbricoides man to man.

Man does not infect his neighbor directly. Fresh worm eggs, ingested by a child pass through the intestine unharmed and do no harm. The hatching into larvae must be done by the intermediate host, usually a rodent, sometimes a pig, dog or cat.

Mayor Key Speaks.
Other speakers who preceded Miss Hughes were Mayor James L. Key, Mrs. V. E. Goudy, president of the women's division of the Chamber of Commerce, and Mrs. Oscar Palmer, president of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs. Herbert E. Choate, president of the Chamber of Commerce, presided.

Filled with amusing anecdotes, Miss Hughes' speech sparkled with knowledge and sincerity. For many years, she was a speaker on chautauqua platforms and "has visited every town in Georgia."

"I know Georgia and I love Georgia," she said, "and I know this state will be in the forefront of the recovery movement."

Miss Hughes warned the women to watch with care and to be fair to all employers and firms in this drive to

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon.

INTERVENTION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The administration has been shunning Cuban intervention talk with one hand while secretly preparing for it with the other.

Our officials tried to maintain an air of calm. But their confidential reports were alarming. Our diplomatic representatives down there predicted as far back as last Tuesday the revolutionary government could not last. They thought then anarchy was a matter of hours. The revolutionists were pictured as a motley crew, incapable of orderly government.

That is why Mr. Roosevelt moved so fast in sending warships. All his private reports suggested grave doubt whether he could get enough sailors into Havana before the new government gave way to no government at all. On the inside, they called it a race between warships and anarchy. In view of that situation, they did not see how intervention could be avoided.

Publicly they had to maintain a different pose. They button-holed all newsmen and advised against printing any intervention predictions. They disguised the mobilization of warships and marines as a gesture to protect American lives and property.

That diplomatic subterfuge was advisable for several reasons.

WHY The main one was that Mr. Roosevelt had a faint hope his private reports would turn out to be wrong. He was so reluctant to use the intervention weapon that he was determined to talk down the issue until forced to act.

He was afraid the radical element throughout Latin America would use it to start another anti-American wave. They caused Mr. Hoover plenty of trouble on that score.

However, they will not get very far this time. This administration already has proved the sincerity of its benevolent policy toward Latin America. Every sensible citizen down there knows it.

THANKS The treasury is not going to be as hard on the banks as advertised.

No orders have been issued to appraise everything at present market values. Probably none will be.

Examiners are now out ascertaining how far the government can afford to go in that regard. They want to tighten up on examinations and the long-view policy will be directed toward that end. Requirements for the deposit guarantee will be fixed as strong as possible without being harsh.

Two national bank calls must be issued before the end of the year. The teachers will not be hard-boiled in marking those examinations papers.

BUILDING

The administration has been searching secretly for something to stimulate building. Two economists have been working on that question. They are about ready to report to Mr. Roosevelt.

They have been inquiring into the feasibility of financing factory-made homes, among other things. Numerous difficulties have been encountered. The chief one is whether it would be better to promote renovation of existing vacant places rather than to try to make cheaper new ones.

The building industry went down further and has stayed down longer than any other. It is being kept on its feet by the public works program, but the boys backstage would like to give it a real tonic if they could.

JOKE

One of the minor new dealers was recently victimized by his own employees.

He had been bragging to his assistants that he read every piece of mail which went over his desk. He talked about how efficient he was and wanted his assistants to be the same.

One of the assistants hit upon an idea. In the mail of the bureau chief one day he slipped a letter addressed to Mr. Roosevelt stating: "I hereby resign my place as chief of the bureau of —"

He is a chastened man now.

NOTES

The Cuban mess comes at a bad time for State Secretary Hull's efforts to promote tariff accord with Latin America. The United States had a legitimate right to intervene in Cuba the moment De Cespedes was overthrown. Nothing was said about it because Mr. Roosevelt did not care to proceed that way, but the regime of the wild-eyed army sergeants was obviously unconstitutional. De Cespedes made no provision for a constitutional successor.

Commissioner Eastman may bear down on the railroads shortly to take advantage of government loan offers for building new equipment. He has a plan.

You Find No Passion for Progress In a Land Whipped by Malaria

By Robert Quillen

Yesterday I sat in a busy corner drug store and observed the people who came in to trade.

Most of them were young. And most of them belonged to the class that is prosperous enough to spend part of the year away from home. A few were athletes, bronzed by outdoor play, graceful, strong, sure of themselves. But with these few exceptions they were physical defectives.

They slouched. Their shoulders stooped. They were underweight or heavy with soft flesh. Their abdomens protruded. They moved with the awkwardness of the weak. Their complexions were sallow. The shoulder blades of the children protruded like embryonic wings.

It is vulgar and cruel to mention the physical defects of individuals, but this is another matter.

I stopped two physicians who came in together and discussed the matter with them. I asked whether all of these people were doomed by nature to die.

"Not a bit of it," said one. "With proper care and training from infancy, all of them might have been good specimens." And the other man of science agreed.

Who, then, is to blame? You will answer without hesitation: "The parents."

But not the parents alone. It is the duty of parents to educate their children, but many of them cannot or will not, and thus the obligation falls on the state.

GUARANTY FIGHT TO PROVE FUTILE, BANKERS WARNED

Bennett, of Ogden, Utah, whom he described as "sound bankers and not politicians," would serve with him as directors of the Federal Deposit Corporation to administer the deposits guaranty.

Bennett is a republican, Cummings a democrat, as provided by the law.

The recent growth of deposits in the postal savings bank, O'Connor said, were "interesting if not alarming." He placed the present total at $1,184,045,200. He put at $1,630,000,000 the peak load of bank withdrawals on last March 4.

The guaranty plan would put all bank deposits of $2,500 and less under the guaranty. It would cover those under $500,000 by 75 per cent, and those above $500,000 to 50 per cent.

96.75 Below Level.
He then quoted figures showing 96.75 per cent of deposits in American banks amounted to less than $2,500 each. To capitalize the Federal Deposit Corporation, large sums would be contributed by the federal government and the federal reserve, and each bank would pay to the corporation an amount equal to one-half of 1 per cent of its total deposits.

O'Connor said he was in possession of the names of 1,500 qualified men available to make bank examinations and qualify the banks for deposit insurance. He said state organizations could be set up to qualify state banks which are not members of the federal reserve. Members of the reserve could be qualified with less difficulty, he said.

This was in response to declaration of the bankers that there was insufficient time until January 1 to set up the corporation and examine the banks.

DIRECTOR SCOUTS FEARS OF BANKERS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Dire predictions of disaster emanating from the American Bankers' Association convention in Chicago were minimized today by officials of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

They have been inquiring into the feasibility of financing factory-made homes, among other things. Numerous difficulties have been encountered. The chief one is whether it would be better to promote renovation of existing vacant places rather than to try to make cheaper new ones.

The building industry went down further and has stayed down longer than any other. It is being kept on its feet by the public works program, but the boys backstage would like to give it a real tonic if they could.

One of the minor new dealers was recently victimized by his own employees.

could go on loving together afterwards.

Pierce also said he could prove that Read and Mrs. Read lived together after the suit was filed against the blond actress.

At a day of testimony Mrs. Read denied having affairs with other men, although she admitted frequent quarrels with her husband and discussions of the divorce.

The society matron told of a trip to Hollywood at the request of Read. "I had me come down to Hollywood one time," Mrs. Read testified in answer to a question by Pierce as to when she first found the actress' love letters.

"I went to his room," Mrs. Read continued, and in the waste basket I found a letter from her to him. I read it and pasted it together. It was a love letter from Miss Windsor. I mailed it to my mother in Oakland."

And on the way back to Oakland I did run across with him about it. "Yes, we quarreled all the way back. I promised to break up the affair. When we got back we went to the hotel and from the bottom drawer of his desk he got out a packet of letters from Miss Windsor."

"We took them over to a hotel and I read them. They contained the same thing as the other letter. It was a love letter from Miss Windsor. I mailed it to my mother in Oakland."

At another point in the cross-examination, Mrs. Read testified she induced her husband to discharge his duties as a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco, who came Tuesday as a witness for Miss Windsor.

Mrs. Read said she quarreled with Read over Miss Windsor but denied she had accused the secretary of "staying all night" with him.

"I found out, though, that she had been carrying on a love affair with Miss Windsor," she said.

She has seen in her travels. She told of a man, wife and child living in an abandoned auto in Washington after being hungry for days. She said there are hundreds of thousands of children who will "pay for this depression as long as they live in the form of bodies weakened by tuberculosis and malnutrition."

The greed and selfishness of men did not escape her. "We must do what we have always done—clean up this mess the blunders and meanness of man has brought about," she concluded.

Speaking a welcome to Miss Hughes for the city, Mayor Key also said "men have made this mess and now it is up to you women to clean it up for us. Unless you succeed in doing what man cannot do, chaos may be the result. Man has always been a fool carrying everything he has toward the government. He has not hesitated to conscript the lives of men during the World War—and it certainly has the right to do just what it is doing, conscripting the wealth and business of man in a crisis even more grave than we faced in 1917."

Hailing the NRA as a widely operating force, Superintendent of Schools Willis A. Sutton, said Thursday that he believed the movement would enlarge the enrollment in schools.

Reports that "racketeering" had entered the NRA at Chattanooga in the form of "promotions of special NRA directors" failed to find an echo in Atlanta Thursday. Campaign leaders said they had heard of no such thing. Reports said promoters in Chattanooga were charging merchants $2 each to be listed in the special directory. Washington officials said such "racketeering" was not in the NRA without the sanction of the administration.

DAY BY DAY In Georgia's History

HIGHWAY BOARD WILL SPREAD WORK

to the purposes of the government." "Atlanta," he said, "has suffered most from unemployment and the depression of the federal reserve. The distribution of the federal money."

The city has not formulated any definite plan to share the 25 per cent allotted to municipalities, but a number of dangerous grade crossings in Atlanta should be eliminated, and condemned structures, such as Peters street, Magnolia street, and a portion of the Edgewood avenue structure, should be rebuilt, Mayor Key said.

McKee Favors Spreading Fund.
Commissioner McKee said that, if possible, he favored the splitting of the fund equally among the six divisions of the highway department.

"I am in favor of spreading the fund equally over the state if possible," Judge McKee said. "However, if this does not meet the requirements for relief and less traffic congestion, some other equitable plan will have to be drawn."

Chairman McKee said the only project on which the board was generally agreed was the one calling for the paving of the 14-mile stretch on Route 3 from Thomasville to the river. This is the only unpaved gap on that route.

It also was expected, although the board members would not commit themselves, that the early projects would include the filling in of the gaps on Route 1, which runs from Chattanooga to the Florida line, along the western section of the state, completion of the paving of the Atlanta-Augusta, Athens-Macon, Macon-Savannah and other projects.

"The board already is at work," Mr. Mangham said, "and all that we ask is that we be given time to work out our problems and not be deluged with delegations and proposals."

Talmadge Issues Statement.
In connection with the release of the funds, Governor Talmadge Thursday issued a statement from Washington before starting for Atlanta. The statement follows:

"The contract between Mr. Macdonald and me is just a copy of the contract between the state and the federal government. There are no strings tied to it and Georgia is getting her money just like the rest of the states."

"We welcome the federal inspection because we want the best roads that can be had. This inspection is what they have always had the right to make under the federal contract. No supervisor or dictator was appointed for Georgia. As stated above, Georgia gets her money just like the rest of the states."

"Our contract will be carried out to the letter by the state."

"Any statement carried in the newspapers today that a supervisor had been appointed in error. There was an effort made by several parties from Georgia to have a supervisor or dictator appointed for Georgia but the president refused the suggestion."

Governor's Agreement.
The governor's agreement with Director McDonald follows:

"No. 1.—In order to obtain the benefits provided under this act to aid in the relief of the unemployed and to provide highway improvement, the state agrees to the highway program will be set up on the basis of the state as a unit and that in the choosing of the projects to be financed with the federal money, first consideration will be given to the relief of unemployment and second, to the relative traffic needs."

"No. 2.—The commission (state highway department of Georgia) will maintain an adequate engineering organization which will function through the chief engineer of the state highway department in all technical matters for the purpose of carrying out the intentions of the federal highway legislation. It is understood that this includes the placing of competent engineers and inspectors who will produce results satisfactory to the bureau in the construction of individual projects."

DEMAND REMOVAL OF TAX ON COTTON

Processing Levy Unanimously Opposed by Mass Meeting in Albany.

ALBANY, Ga., Sept. 7.—(P)—A mass meeting of 150 farmers and business leaders here today unanimously indorsed resolutions demanding immediate abolition of the processing tax on cotton and early "reasonable and controlled expansion of currency."

The resolution cites the inability of the farmers to participate in national recovery due to low selling price of farm products, particularly cotton, cottonseed and peanuts.

President Roosevelt is asked to bring about the removal of the processing tax on cotton or substitute a sliding scale tax.

Inflation is urged on the grounds that "a large percentage of southern farmers are laboring under a load of debt contracted when commodities were bringing much higher prices and these debts cannot be paid at the present level of commodity prices."

Senator George and Congressman Cox and Castellow drew up the resolutions. They also addressed the meeting. Other speakers were Leonard Farkas, head of the Albany NRA committee, and Ernest Davis, state representative from Mitchell county.

Kidnaping Charged To Atlanta Man

W. Fred Gaultney, 37, of a Cooper street address, was being held without bond Thursday night at the police station on charges of kidnaping, drinking, and driving while under the influence of liquor. The charges were brought by Mrs. Lucile Burke, 25, who lives off Fair street, near the Fulton and Cotton mills.

Mrs. Burke alleged that Gaultney held her prisoner in his car one night. He was arrested Thursday morning by city officers and his trial was set for Thursday afternoon in recorder's court but was postponed, according to police reports, Gaultney, who is married, lived with the Southern Pine Revivalizing Co. on Ormeau avenue, denied all charges. He said he was not living with the woman and that he was not driving a car while drunk. He is represented by Henry W. McLarty, Atlanta lawyer.

Eastman Warns Rails, To Protect Labor

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(P)—A blunt statement that railroad managements "must keep their hands off" so far as labor organizations are concerned was made today by Joseph B. Eastman, federal transportation co-ordinator, in addressing a questionnaire to all rail presidents to determine if they are living up to the labor protection provisions of the emergency railroad act.

Eastman, in a formal statement, said he had received "many complaints" which led him to believe the labor provisions, including that one prohibiting railroads from using their own funds to maintain company unions were being "overlooked or misunderstood."

In a preface to the lengthy questionnaire, the co-ordinator served notice on the railroads that he would enforce these provisions to the letter.

GRiffin, Ga., Sept. 7.—(P)—The Sunday school convention of the Macon district of the C. M. E. church, with Rev. W. A. Kelly, presiding elder, and J. W. Davidson, pastor, met in Trinity church here yesterday. Large delegations came from Macon, Barnesville, Forsyth, The Rock, Atlanta, and all rural sections and smaller towns between them. Among the pastors are: Revs. H. H. Davis, C. H. Carter, W. H. Hall, C. W. Williams, Macon; J. D. Hill, D. H. Pitts, Barnesville; C. C. Norman, Lithia; Z. C. Solomon, Thomaston, and J. B. Smith, Conard; Dr. J. A. McCall, editor Sunday school periodicals, C. M. E. church, Atlanta, is among the visitors and will give lectures upon Sunday school teaching for the next two days.

The local people of Griffin are showing very much interest. The city furnished a program of welcome last night and were addressed by W. P. Powell, city commissioner, and the Rev. Fred L. Glisson, pastor of the Methodist church, South, this city.

SEVEN YOUTHS RETURN FROM SCOUT JAMBOREE

Seven Atlanta Boy Scouts who attended the international Scout jamboree at Godollo, near Budapest, Hungary, returned to Atlanta Thursday afternoon after a journey which carried them through England, Holland, Belgium and Austria.

They were William L. Brady, leader of the southern group; Boileufel Jones, assistant leader; Capers Andrews, Steadman Burgess, George Gillon, Swain McCracken and John Seydel, of Atlanta; William J. McCandless, of Canton, Ga.; Johnson Harris, of Wilkes County, N. C.; and Victor Witten, of Jacksonville, Fla., also made the trip. With 53 nations represented by 32,000 Boy Scouts, the jamboree was declared a success. The Atlantans came from New York by boat to Savannah. They had been gone since July 10.

Scarcity of Mules and Horses Raises Prices of Farm Live Stock

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Sept. 7.—With the greatest scarcity of mules and horses in the history of the country being reported at this time, much higher prices are predicted for mules this fall and next spring by Dr. W. E. Oliver, owner and operator of the mule stables of this city, who has just returned from a 12,000-mile automobile trip which carried him into practically all of the mule-producing states and many other states on the Pacific coast. Among the states visited were Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Nevada, Wyoming, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Colorado and California, and not only were the large marketing centers visited but motor trips were made out into the country near the various centers where close contact could be had with the live-stock raisers.

Dr. Oliver predicts that prices this fall will be about 20 per cent higher than last spring, while prices in the coming spring will be fully 50 per cent higher than for the past several months. To illustrate this he stated that mules selling at average prices of $75 to 100 last fall and bringing $125 to $150 the past spring, will be fully 20 per cent higher during the coming marketing season.

One of the reasons ascribed for the great shortage of mules and horses at this time, he states, is that in many sections of the country where they formerly were raised on a large scale none are now available because the live-stock men were forced to discontinue raising mules and horses which they couldn't sell, as the demand for the past few years had been so great that they curtailed because of the increased use of tractors and machinery in the great farm belts. Now, however, with machinery worn out and no money to replace these expensive machines, farmers in many sections are forced to return to the use of mules and horses as beasts of burden, creating a demand far in excess of the normal production of the country, and resulting in higher price schedules.

Beer Proposal Tabled By Columbus Council

COLUMBUS, Ga., Sept. 7.—(P)—A proposal to legalize the manufacture and sale of 3.2 beer has been defeated by city commissioners, who unanimously tabled a motion to pass an ordinance to that end.

A delegation of 35 citizens appeared before the commission and opposed the ordinance in no uncertain terms. Their spokesman, Theo J. McGee, insisted the Georgia bone-dry law prohibits the manufacture, sale or possession of any beverage made in imitation of beer, regardless of whether it contains alcohol.

The commissioners explained they tabled the ordinance for lack of authority to legalize beer.

'HEATH SUICIDE' PROBE BACKS HOAX THEORY

CHARLESTON, S. C., Sept. 7.—(P)—Authorities today sought to trace the writer of a "suicide" note, branded a hoax, which purported to confess the murder of a man slain near Augusta, Ga., three years ago.

The note, signed "J. E. Heath," said he was committing suicide because he had "had no peace" since murdering and robbing a sailor named Grady Williams.

Father of the Ralston Grady Williams, who was found shot to death near Augusta while home on a furlough, is now serving life imprisonment on conviction of the young sailor's murder. It was charged that the father, an Augusta minister, killed his son in order to recoup market losses with his insurance money.

Solicitor-General George Hains, of Augusta, said several factors led him to believe the suicide note found here was a "hoax." He pointed out that Williams had not been robbed when he was killed. The fact that clothes were found with the note in a bathroom here were all new supported the theory that it was a "plant," he said.

BIBB MAY WITHDRAW U. S. LOAN APPLICATION

MACON, Ga., Sept. 7.—(P)—W. H. M. Weaver, vice chairman of the Bibb county board of commissioners, today indicated the county may withdraw an application for $150,000 in public works funds.

He said the loan would be investigated thoroughly by the commission before a decision is reached on the proposal of the government to contribute 30 per cent of the fund to the county, adding that under the federal requirements for the work the expenditure probably would exceed by 50 per cent the regular outlay for such work.

The county has proposed to use the money for a new detention home and additions to the almshouse and stockade.

NINE-FT. CHANNEL SOUGHT FOR COOSA

Group Sponsors Plan To Do Work With Public Works Fund.

GADSDEN, Ala., Sept. 7.—(P)—New life was injected today into the long-discussed movement to develop the Coosa-Alabama waterway as a conference of Alabama and Georgia civic leaders decided to ask the federal government to finance the project.

Under the arrangement approved by the conference an appropriation from the $3,300,000,000 public works fund would be used to develop a nine-foot channel on the waterway from its origin at Rome, Ga., to Mobile, where the stream provides an outlet to the Gulf of Mexico.

The twofold purpose of giving a healthy boost to the present employment drive and providing a cheap form of transportation for a wide area, will be advanced by the sponsors in their arguments to the government. It was estimated the work, including flood control, would cost around $40,000,000.

The Mississippi Valley Association, a leading advocate of the proposal as a unit of the national plan for developing inland waterways, the appropriation could be obtained without the approval of congress, provided the sanction of General Lytle Brown, chief of engineers, is obtained.

After hearing congressmen from Georgia and Alabama and other prominent leaders of the two states and army engineers discuss the merits of the proposition, the conference appointed a committee to assemble data to be presented to the government in asking for the funds.

Addressing the conference were Congressmen Miles C. Allgood and John McDuffie, of Alabama, and M. C. Farver, of Georgia; Latham McLeay, of St. Louis, executive vice president of the Mississippi Valley Association; former Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama; R. A. Brown, Birmingham, member of the advisory board of the Inland Waterways Corporation, and Major R. A. Sharar, of the States Engineers office, Montgomery.

Woman Leaps to Death With Baby in Her Arms

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 7.—(P)—With her infant daughter clasped tightly in her arms, Mrs. J. H. Logan, 23, plunged to death early today from a seventh story window in Cliff Towers, the apartment where she lived.

Crashing to a concrete pavement below, the 2-year-old daughter, Elaine, was killed outright and her mother died shortly afterward.

Investigators learned that Mrs. Logan's husband, a traveling salesman, was in the hurricane-devastated section of the lower Rio Grande valley when the tragedy occurred. Efforts were being made to locate him.

Torn fragments of what appeared to have been a note were found in Mrs. Logan's room but efforts of police to piece them together were unavailable.

CUBA JUNTA READY TO GIVE UP POWER

Leaders Say They Will Resign at Once If People Desire It.

brought indications that Carlos Manuel de Cespedes may return to power. Sergeant Fulgencio Batista, leader of Monday's revolutionary coup, roared up to the palace accompanied by several automobile loads of soldiers as it was reported a cabinet of national concentration was being formed. A short time later representatives of all political factions arrived at the palace to begin a conference with the junta. Intense excitement prevailed in the capital.

Among the conferees were former President Mario G. Menocal; Colonel Carlos Mendieta, veteran statesman, and Miguel Mariano Gomez, former mayor of Havana. Delegations from the A. B. C. and the O. C. R. R. societies and students were present. Soldiers were everywhere in the palace as the meeting began.

A telephone call to the De Cespedes home brought the information from his nephew and aide that "we are waiting expectantly to learn the outcome of the meeting at the palace." This apparent disposition of the new government to compromise with the opposition, it was learned on high authority, was motivated chiefly by the orders for the concentration of 30 American warships in Cuban waters. The cruiser Richmond and the destroyer Bainbridge arrived in Havana harbor late today to take a stand beside the destroyer McFarland.

The leftist commission this afternoon successfully stood the first test of its authority in handling capably and bloodlessly a number of communist demonstrations by virtue of a strong show of army force.

Practically all uptown Havana stores closed their doors as approximately 500 demonstrators marched through the streets carrying red flags. Soldiers stood on guard at all strategic points.

Previously a spokesman for the radical junta declared its members would leave office "in five minutes" if the people "tell us it is necessary to get out in order to avoid American intervention."

Meanwhile machine guns manned by soldiers were mounted at a number of points as the capital residents tensely awaited the next move, wondering whether it would be another revolution or the moving in of American forces.

"This government," said Jose Iriarri, one of the radical commission, "does not have any pretensions of power. If the people want us out, let them tell us so. "If I find a pile of letters on my desk saying 'get out,' I will do so immediately. That is the attitude of the other commissioners also."

It was learned from a usually reliable source that the communist central committee had secretly agreed to fire on the American forces should they land.

The purpose, it was explained, would be to provoke bloodshed "to demonstrate to the entire world that Cuba is an American colony."

The situation admittedly was fraught with danger.

Many political observers agreed that no authority in Cuba now commanded sufficient respect to preserve order throughout the island.

The possibility of calling upon American armed forces to back up any government that might be set up was freely discussed.

It was pointed out that this would not necessarily mean intervention, since Cuban authorities could continue handling the affairs of state, with the American forces merely guaranteeing order. They have done so several times during the 30 years of Cuban independence.

May Demand Resignation.

A rumor that would not be downed was that the United States would demand that the junta, operating under the name of "the executive commission for the provisional government," surrender its powers to Carlos Manuel de Cespedes and his entire cabinet.

Resigned two days ago when the five members of the commission called at the palace and formally demanded they step out.

Several solutions of the situation were discussed.

One group held the belief that an out-and-out military government should be set up. While this group contended such a move would tend to bring the situation under control, a number held it would not be satisfactory to the United States.

Willings to Return.

Friends of De Cespedes declared he is willing to return to the presidency. If a popular demand is made, the former executive, son of the island's first revolutionary president, has been resting at his home, receiving only the closest of friends.

Guillermo Belt, one of the former cabinet members whose support was sought today by the new regime, declared in this connection: "As far as I am concerned, De Cespedes is still president."

Belt was secretary of public instruction under De Cespedes.

There was no indication of a desire on the part of the present government to agree to a compromise. The members of the commission expressed the belief the United States will not intervene unless public order is seriously disrupted.

In addition to Belt, Eduardo J. Shibus and Dr. Jose Manuel Presno, of the former cabinet members, were asked to return. Chibas was minister of public works and Manuel Presno headed the sanitation department.

Chibas agreed to take over his former post provisionally, but Belt and Manuel Presno declined.

WASHINGTON PREPARED TO STRIKE WITH GUNS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—With its attention focused on the Cuban crisis, the United States government tonight stood ready to land American marine or blue jackets on an instance's notice if its nationals should be attacked by rioters or mobs.

While latest reports to the state department from the island gave hope that no such contingency might arise, the administration mapped out a carefully planned course of action and ordered 16 additional warships to Cuban waters. These brought to 30 the number of armed vessels converging upon the island or standing by a few hours' steaming distance away.

The administration was as definitely opposed to armed intervention, as it had been from the outset, but the landing of fighting men to protect

3 POLICE ANNUAL SOLICITORS HELD

Swindling and Cheating Charged to Two Men and Woman.

Two men and a woman Thursday were under arrest in connection with the police annual and yearbook advertising "raids" on warrants taken out by C. C. Brooks for Chief T. O. Sturdivant, who with six others, is under indictment on a charge of cheating and swindling which grew out of the method of soliciting advertising for the police annual.

Those arrested were Mrs. Lila Leigh, alias Mrs. Rosa Porter, 30, of 411 Parkway drive; E. A. Tarver, 33, of the Lee hotel, and J. J. Gallagher, who was arrested in Knoxville, Tenn., and is being brought back by Atlanta officers. Warrants for their arrest charge cheating and swindling.

Chief Sturdivant said Tarver and Gallagher were employed by a solicitor advertising both had been fired because of strong-arm methods used. Tarver was picked up by officers Wednesday in a raid and Gallagher was taken into custody by Knoxville police under telegraphic request from the chief.

The woman allowed the men to use her room at the Midtown hotel to make telephone calls in getting the ads, it was said. She was released Thursday on her own bond, but Tarver is being held at the police station on suspicion until Gallagher is returned from Tennessee.

Sturdivant said that the legitimate operation of the police annual was distorted by unauthorized agents who forged his name to police court cases.

Gallagher is wanted in Greenville, S. C., on charges of forgery of police officials' names to cards and will be returned there when the Atlanta case is settled, the chief said.

Detectives said Tarver and Gallagher used the name of C. E. Liefer, solicitor for Krein and Daly, publisher of the annual, in making their phone calls.

An investigation by detectives has shown that my name has been used to many police court cases by persons who took money allegedly for advertising in the police annual, Chief Sturdivant said Thursday.

Americans was viewed in another light.

Others Interested.

The great interest of other nations in the Cuban situation was indicated today when diplomatic representatives of many countries visited the state department.

Among them were Ecuador, Persia, Nicaragua, Argentina, Brazil, Japan, France, Belgium and Germany.

A tacit understanding apparently existed among the countries of Latin America that the early establishment of a stable government in Cuba was of tremendous importance if a blow-up of widespread consequences was to be avoided.

HERE ARE WARSHIPS ORDERED TO CUBA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Here are the warships ordered to Cuba, or adjacent waters to protect American citizens, if necessary: Battleship Mississippi, Heavy cruiser Indianapolis, Light cruiser Richmond, Sturdivant, Bainbridge, Goff, Twigs, Talbot, Overton, Claxton, Taylor, Barnard, Hamilton, Fairfax, Ellis and Dupont.

Coast guard destroyers: George E. Badger, Herndon, Semmes, William C. Wood, Hunt, Walworth, Wilkes and Abel P. Uphur.

Reviewing the Shows

"Penthouse" Is Offered At Loew's Grand Today

With Warner Baxter and Myrna Loy at their best, heading a notable cast, Arthur Somers Roche's "Penthouse," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Cosmopolitan production, starts its week's run today at Loew's Grand theater. With them are Phillips Holmes, Mae Clarke, Nat Pendleton, Charles Butterworth and C. Henry Gordon.

"Penthouse" is a breezy, exciting story of love and intrigue in modern Manhattan. It involves members of two contrasting classes of society, the smart Long Islanders and the criminal underworld of the city's underworld. They meet when Warner Baxter, as a fashionable lawyer, undertakes the defense of a notorious gangster. Baxter's brilliant defense wins the gangster's freedom and his lifelong gratitude.

Baxter's fiancée breaks their engagement when he refuses to promise to take no more criminal cases. The girl, fearing such publicity, quickly transfers her affections to another young man played by Phillips Holmes.

How the case and in search of evidence he meets Maisie, very different from the girl he has been in love with, but a loyal, very wise and most beautiful woman. It is principally her support which enables Baxter to explore the underworld in smart penthouses and night clubs, and to gain the evidence which finally brings the real criminal to justice.

"Penthouse" is a notable melodrama, interspersed with comedy and always swiftly paced.

Current Production Of Peruchians Lauded

Atlanta theatergoers have been practically unanimous in declaring "This Thing Called Love," the current production by the Peruchi Players at the Erlanger theater, the finest thing this popular stock organization has done since coming to the city 15 weeks ago.

Especially enthusiastic has been the praise for Gerald Rowan and Nanette Sargent. The handsome leading man and the new ingenue have that knack of playing their parts as though they had rehearsed and played them for months, instead of having studied them only one week. They are both exceptionally clever players and give performances that are smooth and finished in every detail, both as to lines and "business."

The play is a clever story on the theme that people who marry while they are desperately in love frequently see their matrimonial venture fail when jealousy and suspicion enter their lives. The girl in the play, determined that "this thing called love" shall not wreck her happiness, contracts a marriage on strictly business lines, with a salary and complete independence as part of the bargain.

How this plan fails to work out provides the fascinating theme. Mildred Peters is the girl in the case. There are many desirable seats still available for the three remaining performances, tonight, Saturday night and Saturday matinee. While prices are exceedingly low at all times, they are still stiffer for the matinee and large crowds are always the rule for these afternoon performances.

All seats for all performances are now reserved and may be secured at

The state claimed Mrs. Lamson was slain by someone who seized her by the hair, pulled her head forward and struck her with a blunt instrument. It charged a trail of blood led through the house to Lamson at his backyard bonfire, and the alleged murder the bonfire any day after 10 a. m. weapon, removed from that fire, bore blood stains. Witnesses today testified that every line in that chain of circumstances was false. David himself denied his wife had used a subterfuge to repulse him the night before her death and that for that reason he slept in another room. Dr. Richards testified a 180-pound man could not have fractured Mrs. Lamson's skull with the alleged weapon. Dr. Stanley Kneeshaw said one blow of the pipe could not have caused the wounds. That repeated blows might, if delivered in the same position, but that descriptions of the wounds made it sound unlikely that such blows were struck. One contact—but not from the pipe—could have caused the fractures, he said. He believed contact with a flat surface caused the wounds, but did not attempt to claim the "flat surface" was a wash basin. Dr. Ernest Vickers, a bio-chemist, flatly denied that the "trail of blood" through the Lamson home was blood.

Report on Camps in Southeast Reveals Business Stimulation.

Wages totaling $3,600,000 have been disbursed by army finance officers among members of the civilian conservation corps and their dependents in the southeast, Major General Edward L. King, commander of the fourth corps area, reported Thursday.

His report covered the period from the beginning of the reforestation camps to August 31. About $720,000 was paid directly to the workers and $2,880,000 was distributed among their dependents.

Wages, however, were only a portion of the money placed in circulation by the conservation work. A sum of $1,535,000 was spent for camp food, $175,000 for clothing and $1,201,600 for shelter and other facilities of the camps.

Wages and expenses ran up a total of $6,571,000 for the period. A great portion of which was spent in the south, General King said.

Aside from that, the forestry department of the federal government has spent several million dollars for trucks, tractors, road machinery and tools, he added.

General King recalled that while the money to dependents took many people off charity rolls, it also aided in stimulating business and improving industrial conditions.

Citing contributions of the conservation corps to national recovery, he quoted the following excerpts from a report of the director of emergency conservation work:

"Jobs have been given 350,000 persons, including 270,000 young men and 30,000 experienced foresters, 26,000 war veterans, 20,000 supervisors and civilians needed at the camps."

"Relief in some form has been extended to not less than 1,500,000 persons representing the families and dependents of the men given jobs in the civilian conservation corps."

"Up to July 31, $42,000,000 had been shot into industrial and manufacturing channels."

"One hundred thousand dollars are spent daily for food."

"Twenty-three million dollars have been paid out in cash allowances. Most of this money, approximately $16,000,000, has gone in the form of allotment checks direct from the army finance officers to dependent families."

General King's report showed the following amounts were sent dependent families in the states of the fourth corps area during July and August: Tennessee, $240,000; North Carolina, $290,000; South Carolina, $170,000; Georgia, $295,000; Florida, $135,000; Alabama, $290,000; Mississippi, $182,000; and Louisiana, $195,000.

10 Careful Drivers Put on Honor Roll

Ten careful and courteous operators of motor vehicles were selected from Atlanta's main thoroughfares Thursday by a reporter for the honor roll of careful drivers. Some act of automotive courtesy or a particular instance of strict obedience to traffic regulations made them eligible for that honor and they have been rewarded with guest admissions to see "From Broadway to Hollywood," currently showing at Loew's Grand.

Again today a Constitution staff man stationed at a busy corner will observe unusual acts of care and courtesy in operating a motor vehicle and, unknown to the drivers, they will be noted for today's honor roll. Guest tickets to Loew's Grand will be mailed to them this afternoon.

Thursday's honor roll included: Mrs. Annie S. Brown, 144 Erie avenue, Decatur; Theodore Alston, 638 McDaniel street; C. J. Barrett, 608 Williams street, East Point; Ward H. Sachs, 779 Virginia avenue; Mrs. Isabelle Johnston, 5 West Wesley avenue; W. E. Carroll, 1500 Rogers avenue; C. M. Towery, 713 Erie avenue; Mrs. Daphne McConnell, 985 Virginia avenue; J. M. Morris, R. F. D. 2, Suwanee; Louis Goffen, 1509 22 Marietta street building.

Atlanta Schools To Ask $3,000,000

Atlanta's request for $3,000,000 of federal public works money to build and improve school buildings will be heard at 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning by the Georgia state advisory board of public works at the offices in the Citizens & Southern National Bank building.

The board, composed of Thomas J. Hamilton, of Augusta, chairman; Arthur Lucas and Ryburn G. Clay, of Atlanta, begins a two-day series of hearings at 11 o'clock this morning, when the petition of the city of Elberton will be presented.

Members of the parent-teacher associations, citizens and all teachers and principals have been requested by the Atlanta board of education to attend the hearing Saturday in support of Atlanta's application for funds.

FIVE MEN SCALDED BY BOILING WATER

APPEAL BY BARNETT IN SUPREME COURT

Captain J. W. Barnett's ouster proceedings against Chairman J. J. Maughan, of the state highway board, Thursday were before the supreme court. Judge J. R. Hutcheson, of Douglasville, having signed the Barnett bill of exceptions after denying the ousted chairman's motion for a new trial.

The proceedings, filed in the nature of a quo warranto, were tried before a Haralson county jury at Buchanan last week. The jury finding in favor of Maughan.

WOOD-RAT RECORD.

The Florida woodrat, Neotoma floridana, is another of those animals that crops up now and then in unexpected places, and for the time being upset the distribution maps completely. For many years this animal has been known in Georgia only in those counties that border the coast. Its range was thought to be a narrow strip along the coasts of South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

A letter from Arthur H. Howell, senior biologist of the United States bureau of biological survey, tells me that Neotoma floridana is known to live in Union county, at Neal's Gap, down at the base of Blood mountain. Another distribution map goes into the waste basket as we reach for another one to plot the range again.

On second thought, wouldn't it be better to wait until further collecting furnishes enough specimens for us to know whether or not we are dealing with a new subspecies? If any peculiar-looking rodents come to your attention near Atlanta, get in touch with this department, and let us find out what they are. It may be that Neotoma ranges into this section of Georgia as well. There are probably a number of species of animals around Atlanta whose presence is as yet unsuspected. In spite of the aversion of one particular reader of this column it is our firm purpose to give information about the mice that are found in Georgia as we find them.

The point that I am making is simply this: we are blessed with a wealth of plant and animal life that is worthy of intensive study. Unless something is done to establish a working knowledge of the species unknown to our lists, there may never be a chance to know them at all. The commercialization of the state has resulted in distinction of cover for small animals, birds and many of the reptiles. And when we say "cover," we mean the plant growths that furnish shelter and food.

More power to collectors, therefore, of animals and plants so poorly understood in Georgia that we cannot even say with certainty where they will be found. It is true that the distribution of many African animals is better known than of some of the more common ones right under our noses. I expect to have more to say about this tomorrow, but from a different angle. All of you can be of value to scientific workers if you will keep your eyes open.

When Worlds Collide

By EDWIN BALMER & PHILIP WYLIE

From photographic plates made in South Africa by Professor Bronson and rushed by him to David Randall in New York to Dr. Cole Henderson, celebrated physicist, the scientists of the world have determined that two planets, torn away from another sun, are approaching the earth. The millions on the earth have not yet been able to fully realize that this means annihilation but the scientists, functioning as the League of the Last Days under Henderson's leadership, are planning the space ship on which to transfer to the smaller of the planets, Bronson Beta. Bronson Beta revolves around Bronson Alpha as the moon does around the earth and when Bronson Alpha collides with the earth and wipes it out, Bronson Beta, about the size of the earth, will have passed on. "It's going to be tomorrow, isn't it?" Tony Drake asks Dr. Henderson, who is her famous father's assistant. "No, Tony—more than tomorrow. Darn strange coincidence," she tells him, and explains about the space ship, spool his plans for them by marrying, and two years before the Bronson bodies are due to approach the earth the first time—it will not be destroyed until their second approach—Henderson tells Tony he is to be a member of the selected crew. Tony, a good student and a football player at Yale, has been in Wall Street, on the advice of Henderson, he devotes the first year to gaining a knowledge of agriculture, proficiency in manual arts and elementary mechanics—although the scientist made no direct reference to life on Bronson Beta, NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XV.

"Have you seen," asked the poet, "anything like—cities?"

"Cities?"

"The ruins of cities, I mean. That globe lived in the sunshine of a star that was an octillion, octillion miles away. I thought just now, looking at it, that perhaps on it were cities like this, where people once watched the coming of whatever pulled them loose from their sun, and dropped them into the black mouth of space."

Some of the company about him were looking up and listening; others paid no attention to him. He did not care; a few had shared his feeling; and among them was Eve, who stood near him.

"Would you rather we went that way?" she said to him.

"Slipping into space, falling away, all of us in the world together retreating farther and farther away from our sun, gradually freeing as we went into darkness?" Eliot James shook his handsome head. "No; if I had my choice, I think I'd elect our way. Yet I wonder how they feel—what they did!"

"I wonder," said Eve, her eyes upon the yellow orb, "if we'll ever know."

"Look," proclaimed some one else who was gazing down, "the lights are beginning to go."

He meant the street lamps of New York, which had been switched on as usual and maintained to this minute. Thousands of them still prevailed, indeed; but a huge oblong, which had been lighted before was darkened now.

"The flood has caught the conduits!" And with the word, the little gleaming rows which etched the streets throughout another district died; but the rest burned on in beautiful defiance.

The city officially was abandoned; but men remained. Some men, whatever the warning, whatever the danger, refused to surrender; they stuck to their duties and to their services to the last. Some men and some boys; and some women and girls, too. And so, on this night, New York had lights; it kept communication—a telephone and telegraph, too.

But now another pattern of blocks disappeared; Brooklyn went black. Beacons burned—airplane-guides and lighthouses. Ships, having their own electric installations, could be seen seeking the sea.

That, too, thought Tony, was only a splendid gesture; yet the sight of the ships, like the stubborn persistence of the lights, threw a tingle in his blood and made him more proud of some of them! What use to steer them out to sea? For what would they be saved? Yet captains and crews could be found to steer and stake them.

More blocks were black; the light from the awful orb of the Bronson bodies slanted sharp across the streets, their shadows unbroken by the last lamps of the city's defiance.

The street gave up sounds—the rush of air as the loud edge of the flood advanced, filling the last floor of the canons between the buildings. All over the world at the seaboard it came, except that some cities already were over-swept.

Eliot James moved closer to Eve. "What does it do to you?" he said.

"She answered: "Too much."

"Yes," he said. "And it's only begun."

"It's not begun," whispered Eve. "This—this is really nothing. Tonight, the waters will merely rise over the lower buildings of the city, and then subside. We will all leave in the ebb tide."

"Which, I suppose, will drain the rivers dry? There was clearly no practical purpose for staying this 12 hours long; but we did, I would not have escaped this sensation."

Tony drew Eve away. He made the excuse that, her father having retired, she should sleep; but having taken her away from the others, he kept her to himself.

"Eve, we've got to marry!"

"My dear, what would marriage mean now?"

"But you feel it—don't you?"

"Need for you?"

"As never before, Eve?"

"Yes, Tony. It's as he said—oh, my dear! The waters overwhelm you—the flood rising and rising, and those two yellow discs doing it! And no one can stop them! They're coming on, Tony! They're coming on, to lift the waters higher and higher; they're coming on to crack open the shell of the earth! Tony—oh, hold me!"

"I have you, Eve. You have me! Here we are, two of us together. . . . They're in pairs wherever they are in New York tonight, Eve. Didn't you see them? Wherever they waited, a woman waited with a man. There's the only answer to annihilation. That's it."

"Tony!"

"My dear—"

"What's that . . . for your name? Someone's searching for you."

In the yellow light on the roof they could see a uniformed boy. He had arrived at the building an hour ago, the boy was saying; with the elevators stopped he had climbed to the roof by the stairs. Tony took his telegram, tore it open and read: "Mrs. Madeline Drake murdered by Eliot James, too."

They were bound with him—and with Eve—in the close company of the league of the last days whose function lay no longer in the vague future. The peculiar rules and regulations of the league already were operative in part; others would clamp their control upon him immediately. Continued Tomorrow.

Aunt Het

"A man don't love his second wife more. It just looks that way because he's tryin' to make up for the way he treated the first one. There's the only answer to annihilation. That's it."

Lillian Mae Patterns.

ter. Judith subsided, but made no effort to help her sister. It was plain to see that Claire was going to be the cook in the Lacey family. Judith liked to clean and polish silver but hated to cook. Which was all to the good, for Claire despised cleaning and adored cooking.

The mixture which she was chopping in the bowl was later to emerge as chow chow. The recipe was really quite complicated. Here it is, as Claire used it.

Wash and chop six green peppers into small pieces. Peel one quart small green tomatoes into eighths. Scrape and cut one bunch of celery into small pieces. Peel one quart small onions—the button size. Separate one head of cauliflower into flowerets. Cover all of these with boiling water. Let the mixture boil for three minutes. Then drain. Make a brine using three quarts of water and two cups of salt. Let the vegetables stand in this over night. In the morning bring the vegetables to boiling point, using this brine for liquid. Drain.

Cook one cup flour, one-half cup dry mustard, one tablespoon turmeric, one cup sugar with five cups of vinegar until the paste is smooth. Add the drained vegetables to this, reheat to boiling and then put into clean jars. Seal.

Friendly Counsel

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Our name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: Each of us considers his case a peculiar one. Well, I know mine is rare. I am engaged to an A-1 young lady, nice and fine in every way. We are deeply in love with each other. Her entire family has treated me royally in every respect. Since becoming engaged to this girl my health became bad and while I have every hope of recovery I never expect to be exactly normal again. She and her family are fully acquainted with my physical condition as outlined by the doctor. I love this girl more than ever, loving her as I do and respecting her. I want to release her from our engagement. I felt I owed it to her to give her the chance to marry a healthy man. She will not accept my offer and says that since my illness has increased rather than decreased her love for me. She comes of a good family, is self-supporting and independent. I want to do what is best for both of us and I am asking your advice as to what is best.

CHEERFUL.

Answer: This is a question that can be decided in the light of the physician's diagnosis; and decided by the girl and yourself with reference to her family's wishes in the matter. If the disease with which you are afflicted is not communicable, if it is, in the doctor's opinion, not inheritable and the girl is willing to marry you in the face of your disability, then there can be no real reason for your breaking the engagement. There are a good many "ifs" here but no unnecessary ones.

If the character of your illness is such that it would be a menace to the health of the girl you love, then your love for her should counsel you to protect her against her own folly in insisting on marrying you. In such a case it is best for both of us and to release her from the engagement. You should refuse to permit her to sacrifice herself on the altar of her love.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: Here is a mix-up: My best girl friend is in love with a boy that loves me and I am in love with a boy that loves her. Each of us is in love with both of us and so matters now are we are together, the four of us, and at least we are able to see each other frequently. If we tell the boys how things really stand, one or the other might drop out of the picture. How would you go about straightening things out?

IN A QUANDARY.

Answer: Perhaps you have seen the eager interest with which a group of children tackle a jigsaw puzzle. They will work as industriously as ants getting all the pieces fitted together properly. Perhaps you have seen them when the puzzle had been solved. They have no more interest in the completed picture than they have in any other picture in a magazine that lies around the house. If their mother isn't watchful they toss the whole thing aside, and destroy with the sweep of the hand what they have spent hours in creating. So you and the girl-friend are having a glorious time playing with your love puzzle. The chances are that when you have worked it all out each of the four of you will lose interest in the game. Enjoy yourself all together. So long as each of you loves some other and is loved by some other there is a pretty fair distribution of affection and much excitement in connection with the game.

Separate one head of cauliflower into flowerets. Cover all of these with boiling water. Let the mixture boil for three minutes. Then drain. Make a brine using three quarts of water and two cups of salt. Let the vegetables stand in this over night. In the morning bring the vegetables to boiling point, using this brine for liquid. Drain.

Cook one cup flour, one-half cup dry mustard, one tablespoon turmeric, one cup sugar with five cups of vinegar until the paste is smooth. Add the drained vegetables to this, reheat to boiling and then put into clean jars. Seal.

Friendly Counsel

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Our name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: Each of us considers his case a peculiar one. Well, I know mine is rare. I am engaged to an A-1 young lady, nice and fine in every way. We are deeply in love with each other. Her entire family has treated me royally in every respect. Since becoming engaged to this girl my health became bad and while I have every hope of recovery I never expect to be exactly normal again. She and her family are fully acquainted with my physical condition as outlined by the doctor. I love this girl more than ever, loving her as I do and respecting her. I want to release her from our engagement. I felt I owed it to her to give her the chance to marry a healthy man. She will not accept my offer and says that since my illness has increased rather than decreased her love for me. She comes of a good family, is self-supporting and independent. I want to do what is best for both of us and I am asking your advice as to what is best.

CHEERFUL.

Answer: This is a question that can be decided in the light of the physician's diagnosis; and decided by the girl and yourself with reference to her family's wishes in the matter. If the disease with which you are afflicted is not communicable, if it is, in the doctor's opinion, not inheritable and the girl is willing to marry you in the face of your disability, then there can be no real reason for your breaking the engagement. There are a good many "ifs" here but no unnecessary ones.

If the character of your illness is such that it would be a menace to the health of the girl you love, then your love for her should counsel you to protect her against her own folly in insisting on marrying you. In such a case it is best for both of us and to release her from the engagement. You should refuse to permit her to sacrifice herself on the altar of her love.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: Here is a mix-up: My best girl friend is in love with a boy that loves me and I am in love with a boy that loves her. Each of us is in love with both of us and so matters now are we are together, the four of us, and at least we are able to see each other frequently. If we tell the boys how things really stand, one or the other might drop out of the picture. How would you go about straightening things out?

IN A QUANDARY.

Answer: Perhaps you have seen the eager interest with which a group of children tackle a jigsaw puzzle. They will work as industriously as ants getting all the pieces fitted together properly. Perhaps you have seen them when the puzzle had been solved. They have no more interest in the completed picture than they have in any other picture in a magazine that lies around the house. If their mother isn't watchful they toss the whole thing aside, and destroy with the sweep of the hand what they have spent hours in creating. So you and the girl-friend are having a glorious time playing with your love puzzle. The chances are that when you have worked it all out each of the four of you will lose interest in the game. Enjoy yourself all together. So long as each of you loves some other and is loved by some other there is a pretty fair distribution of affection and much excitement in connection with the game.

Mrs. Flora Gillentine Is D. A. R. Candidate For National Office

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 7.—Announcement has been made of the candidacy of Mrs. Flora Myers Gillentine for the office of president general of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, the election to be sought at the forty-fourth Continental Congress, which will be held in Washington in April, 1935.

Mrs. Gillentine's candidacy is sponsored by the Tennessee branch, D. A. R., and the Colonel Hardy Murfree chapter, of Murfreesboro, her former home. She announced her candidacy at a meeting of the branch held at the home of Mrs. Joseph Hayes Acklen, of Nashville, vice president general from Tennessee; Mrs. Willard Steele, of Chattanooga, regent of Tennessee; Mrs. C. B. Bryan, of Memphis, ex-vice president general; Mrs. James Haynes, regent of Colonel Hardy Murfree chapter; Mrs. William G. Spencer, of Brownsville, N. Y., ex-vice president general; Miss Margaret Breward, of Murfreesboro, and state board.

Mrs. Gillentine last visited Atlanta as the guest of Mrs. Howard H. McCall, former vice president general of the National Society, D. A. R., and an ex-vice president of the branch by the members of Atlanta D. A. R. and other organizations.

The cards announced that Mrs. Gillentine received the unanimous endorsement of her chapter and of the Tennessee conference, and that she served her chapter as historian, treasurer and regent; her state society as registrar and regent; the national society as vice president general, historian general and as a member of the executive committee of the present chairman of national society's filing and lending committee in charge of historical papers, patriotic lectures and lantern slides.

Mrs. Gillentine is one of the best-known women of the nation, being outstanding in the educational world as well as in the work of patriotic societies and other women's clubs. She is a brilliant speaker, excelling specially in addresses of patriotic appeal.

Mrs. Gillentine was a member of Tennessee textbook commission for five years, being the second woman ever to serve on that commission. She was vice president of the Tennessee State Forestry Association and was president of the Tennessee Federation of Women's Clubs, having previously held other state offices. She was president of the Southeastern Council of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Although having the title of doctor of philosophy, Mrs. Gillentine rarely assumes it, even in her educational work. She received her B. S. degree from George Peabody College for Teachers at Nashville in 1910; her Ph. D. from the same institution in 1920, and her M. A. degree from Columbia University, New York, in 1922. She is head of the department of education and director of teacher training at Henderson State Teachers' College, Arkadelphia, Ark., and is a member of the extension staff of the University of Arkansas.

Bryan Grant Eliminates Ellsworth Vines From National

A Grant Sounds a Rebel Yell at Forest Hills

It must have been great to hear the rebel yell echo over sedate old Forest Hills when Bryan Grant, of Atlanta, won from Ellsworth Vines, the American tennis champion, in the play of Thursday afternoon.

It was a bit strange that an Atlantan named Grant should be the first to sound the rebel yell at Forest Hills. But Grant has always been a rebel.

The wonder grows that his five feet and three inches should triumph against the giant height of Vines. But Grant has always rebelled. He is small but his legs are the legs of a giant. And so is his heart.

It was easy to understand that first story which said, "The Southerner tossed his racquet into the air and gave the rebel yell which echoed over the courts."

The remarkable honesty of the boy Grant is one of the most refreshing things which the tournament has seen. He was delighted that he had defeated the champion, and so he tossed his racquet into the air and gave the rebel yell—the first time it has ever been heard on Long Island.

And not only that, but he protested to the committee when he was seeded tenth, five places behind Frankie Parker. And yesterday he protested because he was the only seeded American assigned to the clubhouse court, and not the stadium court.

The clubhouse court lacks facilities for spectators. They had shoved Vines out there, I imagine, because he had beaten Grant before. And they assigned him one of the less important courts.

Straight sets—6-3, 6-3, 6-3—and the American champion is out of the picture. It would not be surprising to see Grant go on to the finals. He seems to have found himself on turf. His forte has been clay-court performances.

It was quite a day at Forest Hills. Some of the favorites went by the boards. They will be saying, of course, that Mr. Vines was a hollow shell, such as Dempsey was at Philadelphia. But the fact is his game had been very good in the earlier rounds. There was a great hope in the U. S. L. T. A. committee rooms that he had found himself and was on the way back.

And so they shoved the little southerner, who speaks his mind, off into a corner court. And the big reason he won was that he was better. Atlanta is to see him meet Frankie Parker on September 16 at the Piedmont Driving Club. It should be a great welcome for Grant.

THE HOLLOW SHELL IDEA

The hollow shell idea will be advanced, but the fact remains that Grant won because he played better tennis.

He has always been an athletic marvel, and the possessor of one of the greatest pair of legs in sport. He is indefatigable. Tennis players have told me that he is maddening in his inexorable returns. He gets the ball back. That is what is so maddening. He gets it back. No matter to what corner of the court it is punched, the ball comes back. Those twinkling, great legs send him over the court like a terrier chasing a ball.

And it comes back. "Why, man," a player once told me, "I have dreamed of playing Grant and I was losing my mind because I would hit, in the dream, thousands of balls and they would all come flying back."

It was during the recent southern amateur tournament that Henry Prusoff, the northwest coast champion, said: "There isn't a tennis player in the United States who isn't afraid of FOREST HILLS, L. I., N. Y., Sept. 7.—A Georgia jack rabbit has taken his place in the halls of sporting fame with Ty Cobb and Bobby Jones.

No wonder the red clay hills are reverberating with the old Georgia chorus that once greeted Cobb, Bobby Jones, Nap Rucker and Bobby Walthour on their day of victory.

For in the fourth round at Forest Hills Bitzy Bryan Grant, of Atlanta, 22 years old, swept Ellsworth Vines, the national champion, from the courts in straight sets.

BEATS GREYHOUND. For the first time in sporting history, the Jack Rabbit won a decision from the Greyhound in one of the most remarkable tennis performances ever known. Little Bitzy Grant, who at times looked like a tennis ball bounding around the court, beat Vines, the tall, angular and tired champion, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

More important still, the fourth round proceedings have brought about a new Davis cup order of training in the United States. For just before Bitzy Grant eliminated Vines in straight sets, Adrian Quist, of Australia, stopped Wilmer Allison by the same straight march.

The two singles Davis cup representatives of the United States fell in straight sets without winning one. Taking no credit from Quist and Grant, who played extremely fine, aggressive tennis, the Vines and Allison of today were far from the Vines and Allison seen on these same courts a year ago. They were not only fighting tennis, they were fighting the competitive mental fatigue of 19 months of hard tennis with little rest along the way.

Nineteen months of almost unbroken competition is more than the human brain can stand. The physical system can hold up but when the keenness leaves aggressive play, when concentration has to be forced to the final limit, the answer is simple enough.

Get this diagnosis, while true in many respects, is hardly fair to Bitzy Grant, the Georgia jack rabbit. This mighty midget gave an exhibition of covering the court, of getting the ball back into play, the play, when concentration has to be forced to the final limit, the answer is simple enough.

WHITE SOX WIN OVER SENATORS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Monte Weaver, Washington pitcher, held Chicago to a single hit in the first eight innings today but lost his game, 1 to 0, when he allowed the White Sox two singles and a walk for a run in the ninth.

Sam Jones, Chicago's veteran, meanwhile held his former Washington teammate scoreless, though he allowed eight hits. The Senators rallied in the ninth with a singles by Schulte, a double by Kuehl and a walk by Bolton, but Jones struck out Pinch-Hitter Rice and made Harris fly out to the catcher.

The Sox scored in the ninth when Simmons singled with one out, Appling walked and Kress singled.

The defeat out Washington's American league lead to eight and one-half games, as the New York Yankees beat St. Louis for the second consecutive time.

Appearing on the mound for the first time since Connie Mack bought him from Louisville, Ky., in the American Association, Marcum, big and rangy hurler, held the third-place Indians to five hits, struck out four men and showed coolness and steadiness in the pinches for his victory.

Pearson opened on the mound for the Indians, but gave way to George Connally in the fifth. From then on there was no more scoring.

DUNLAP CARDS 69 AT KENWOOD

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Par was cracked by three players here today at Kenwood as the advance guard of the nation's amateur golfing army began assembling for the national amateur championship, which starts Monday.

George T. Dunlap Jr., of New Garden, Long Island, N. Y., led the parade with a 69, two under perfect figures. Dunlap is the lad who went to the semi-finals in the British amateur and then lost out in the first round of the New York state amateur.

Lawson Little, San Francisco's title bid, and George Dawson, of Glen Ellyn, Ill., used 70 strokes.

These low scores need not indicate that Kenwood will be burned up in the 36-hole qualifier Monday and Tuesday. All play today was from the middle tee, because the back ones were roped in.

C. Ross Somerville, of London, Ont., the defending champion, and Johnny Goodman, of Omaha, United States open title and favorite for the amateur classic, arrived on the scene today.

Somerville, who became the forgotten man of golf because he is not a fellow to make headlines for himself, used a 76 on his first jaunt around the course. Goodman, stiff from his long train ride, had an approximate 78.

He is as nervous and temperamental as a Tilden. Disgusted with an erring shot, he often slings his racquet, glares at line men and umpire and fusses with bell boys. On the other hand, he will demonstrate his sportsmanship by netting the next ball after he has called a questionable decision against his opponent.

Grant is at his best on clay and won the national championship in 1930. Playing with the University of North Carolina last year he was runner-up in the national intercollegiate tournament. He was ranked 13th by the U. S. L. T. A. this year, but critics say his play this season will net him a higher rating in the next arrangement.

HAVING GOOD YEAR.

Bryan won the southern championship this year for the fifth time. His father, a southern doubles title-winner two decades ago, and his mother, who closely follow his court career, were too nervous to watch the finals.

Among the big shots of tennis he has beaten this year are Vines, Frank Shields, Frankie Parker and George Lott.

Gehrig Continues 'Big Six' Hitting

Lou Gehrig, who only crashed into the Big Six Wednesday, kept up his terrific clouting yesterday to oust Heinie Manush from second place in the American league batting list and fourth in the sextet. "Buster Lott" made three more hits, including his twenty-fifth home run, in four times up, sending his average up 4 points to .335. Manush hit once in four tries and dropped a point to .331.

Jimmie Foxx improved his mark a point with two hits in four tries. Chick Hafey, who had taken the last place from Wes Schumacher, gave back a half interest as he hit only once in four tries and dropped back a point.

The standing: G. A. B. R. H. Pet. Foxx, Athletics.....129 909 .337 Heinie, Phillies.....117 417 .423 Heinie, Phillies.....131 323 .275 Manush, Senators.....134 585 .194 Foxx, Athletics.....129 494 .261 Schumacher, Phillies.....101 328 .252

'Keep After the Ball,' Is Motto of 'Bitsy'

Diminutive Star Makes Up For Lack of Size by Court Covering Skill.

By Dillon Graham, Associated Press Sports Writer.

Bryan (Bitsy) Grant early learned the object in tennis was to keep batting the ball back across the net.

And that's how he wins. How he has beaten a half dozen players ranked above him this season as he did Ellsworth Vines, the defending champion, in straight sets yesterday at Forest Hills.

Bryan hasn't the size, reach or shots to compare with the bigger

Foreign steadiness in the curb market gave way to a dribbling of selling in the late trading period, which resulted in numerous closing losses of fractions to more than a point.

Trading remained in the doldrums, sales approximating 200,000 shares compared with approximately 300,000 Wednesday.

Offerings in leading utilities were fairly persistent. Recession of about a point was noted for Electric Bond & Share, American Gas & Electric and Commonwealth Edison. Krueger Brewing advanced 1 in active dealing.

FURTHER DROP SHOWN IN STEEL PRODUCTION

NEW YORK, Sept. 7. (AP)—Operations in the steel industry continue to decline, though the recession is slower than recently, Iron Age said today.

It estimated the current national average at 45 per cent of capacity compared with 47 per cent last week, 50 per cent a fortnight ago and 53 per cent three weeks ago.

New business, the review stated, is being held back pending a final adjustment of market practices to the conditions imposed by the iron and steel code, although there has been an increase in specifications against third quarter contracts closed at pre-code prices.

Automobile production for September is expected to be 100,000 units, section of the south sharing in the forward movement. The high totals recorded in recent months are noteworthy because previously government construction for a time dominated the picture."

Federal and state building projects totaled only $1,654,000 last month.

Brokers' Views

Definite resistance appears to exist about the NRA's lower. We would buy stocks on any dip.

LIVINGSTON & CO.—Several weeks may elapse before it will be possible to plan definitely under the new conditions resulting from the NRA and meanwhile activity may sag off further. But we feel that when the recovery starts in it may make up for lost time.

DOBBE & CO.—It is possible that if the cotton report Friday is much at variance with estimates, more activity in all markets may develop. But a temporary breaking out of of the rut take place.

COTTON OPINIONS.
FENNER, BEANE & UNGERLEIDER.

220,000 cars against approximately 190,000 cars for August. Automotive production of steel is declining, "although the market is still strong," says the American Iron and Steel Institute. Production of pig iron in August, on AISC reported, was 1,833,394 tons, or 58,142 tons a day, compared with 1,800,000 tons in July. Pig iron producers have reaffirmed current prices for the fourth quarter and are looking more optimistic about the steel market, but output is beginning to reflect smaller requirements. There is a net loss of eight blast furnaces in August, 98 being in operation on September 1.

Rails & Lumber Improvement Reflects Gain in General Business

BY HIRAN HERTZELL.
NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(A.P.)—Analysis of the J. v. earnings statement of country's Class I railroads brings to bold relief the phenomenal improvement in the position of the iron wheels during the arid days of mid-summer, 1932.

The gain of nearly 470 per cent in railway operating income, 3,857 per cent in passenger revenue, reflects not only the substantial gains in general business, but also important advances made in operating methods.

Even if the same time, railway executives find that a comparison between the months is only justified by last year's figures, for the fact that July, last year, included the heaviest of the monthly totals which the railroads have recorded since the turn of the century.

It is not surprising, therefore, that, in the light of the statistics of July, 1932, comes the ruling of the interstate commerce commission that the January 2, 1932, are to expire at the end of the current month.

Railway traffic officials generally disapproved that the charges would affect substantially the total revenues of the carriers. The advanced rates were authorized after the roads had requested a horizontal 15 per cent increase in freight rates. This was denied by the commission which suggested what was regarded as a more equitable method of higher charges on specified freights with the provision that the proceeds be pooled for the benefit of the carriers.

After a considerable amount of discussion, it was agreed eventually that disbursements from the pool were to be made for the formation of interest charges only. The Railroad Credit Corporation was created as administrator of the pool.

Some of the carriers are to receive the surcharges, as compared with the original estimate of $100,000,000 to $125,000,000.

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE No. 5

As Numa's cry was heard far off in the jungle, Mangani, the great ape, became restless. To-day, the king ape, beat his breast and bared his great fangs. Gay-at hunched his powerful shoulders. The ape called their balus to them and took to the branches of the trees.

At this moment an almost black white man dropped among them from the foliage of a tree. Roaring and snarling, the herd rushed upon the hated man-thing. "To-yat has a short memory," said the man in the tongue of the Mangani. The ape paused. "I am To-yat," he growled.

A great hairy mother screamed as a mighty lion, with Numa on his back, stalked through the brush, for Numa was their ancient foe. Suddenly, the ape man spoke. "Little Numa," he whispered, and the monkey gave one prodigious leap on to his shoulder.

But the ape was slow to realize that the man-thing was their friend. The great bulls advanced, their fangs bared. "I am To-yat," growled the leader. "You do not belong here in our country. I kill," the great ape bellowed. "Kill, kill the white thing!"

GOODRICH OFFICIALS REPORT TRADE UPTURN

Representatives From Akron
Office in Atlanta for Conferences.

Guy Gundaker Jr., sales promotion manager, and W. C. Roberts, manager of battery sales of the B. F. Goodrich Company, with offices in Akron, Ohio, are in Atlanta for a series of conferences with H. B. Thaxton, district manager, and other Goodrich representatives.

Discussing general conditions, Gundaker said "we are highly encouraged by the continued upturn in business conditions and believe this recovery will be maintained and broadened within the next several months."

"Included among the first of the country's large business institutions to sign President Roosevelt's blanket code for industry, the Goodrich Company has complied 100 per cent with the program of the national recovery administration."

"We are finding that sales of tires and other auto products to consumers continue to show encouraging upturns. This is especially true of the new golden ply safety Silvertown which Goodrich introduced this spring. This new tire has won wide acceptance."

One of the major subjects of the conference here was the new line of Goodrich batteries which were just being announced to the public.

NRA Stops Strike On Cleveland Trolleys

CLEVELAND, Sept. 7.—(AP)—On the eve of a strike that threatened to tie up Greater Cleveland's public transportation system, the national recovery administration took a hand tonight and the strike was postponed indefinitely.

The NRA intervention was disclosed late today to representatives of both the union and the company by Mayor Ray Miller, who had called them in for a final attempt at peaceful settlement.

The mayor told the conferees that General Hugh S. Johnson, the national recovery administrator, and Senator Robert Wagner of New York, chairman of the NRA's national labor board, had asked him to request the strike postponement until the NRA labor board officials can attempt a settlement.

"General Johnson told me to point out," the mayor said, "that strikes do not carry out the spirit of the NRA."

FOLLOW THE Bible Game

$1,800 IN CASH PRIZES!

By THE BIBLE GAME EDITOR.

With the publication date of picture No. 80 of the Bible Game series but two days removed, the conductor of this department suggests that contestants be leisurely about submitting their sets. The final deadline is not until Wednesday September 20. The days between the appearance of the last picture and the final closing date can be advantageously used by those who are undecided about the appropriateness of some of their verse-answers.

As a service to contestants, The Atlanta Constitution circulation department has arranged to keep copies of all back pictures on hand for the convenience of those who may make belated decisions to submit several complete sets of pictures and answers, which is allowed under the rules. These back pictures are also useful as replacements.

The Bible Treasury will also be kept on hand for those who may want it. The Treasury contains the eighty most appropriate solutions for the eighty pictures. It is 50 cents a copy. Mail requests should have 4 cents extra included for postage.

sets submitted and the length of time required for checking them.

Yes, Indeed.

Q. Please let me know if you can furnish the complete set of Bible Game pictures, and what is the price. Also inform me if contest is open to out-of-state competition.—G. N. J., Sarasota, Fla.

A. The complete set of 80 Bible Game pictures may be obtained at any time now for $2. The Bible Game is open to residents of Georgia and adjacent states, and you are eligible and welcome to take part.

Either Way.

Q. I am enclosing money to cover cost and mailing for the 80 Bible Game pictures. May I write my verse-answers in pencil? I find the ink blots so badly on the newspaper?

A. The pictures have been mailed to you. You may write the verse-answers in any legible manner—pencil, if you prefer. However, I believe you will find that these reprints of the pictures will take ink without blurring at all.

More Sows Are Sought In Marketing Program

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace today pleaded with American farmers to forget false hopes of quick profits and to enter immediately into the administration's emergency hog marketing program.

Wallace warned that unless the farmers co-operate in sending 1,000,000 brood sows to market the whole program will fail. Even if the hog birth control plan is a success, the secretary of agriculture said, farmers in the farm belts must reduce their grain crops materially next year if the long-time corn production control program is to succeed.

Wallace said that about 2,000,000 of the 4,000,000 light pigs called for under the plan have been purchased, but that only about 50,000 brood sows have been sent in. He had called for

1,000,000 sows about to farrow and said that if they were not forthcoming their program could not be a success.

FLORIDA APPOINTED MINISTER TO EGYPT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today appointed Bert Fish, of Florida, to be minister to Egypt.
